Calls for Council Airport Inspection

KNARR STARTS CHECK-UP ON MAYOR'S MOVE

Councilman Wants to Know If $5,000 Fund's Being Spent as Council Designated.

ACTION DUE THIS WEEK

Miller Declares Locke 'Overstepped Bounds,' Says Job Up to Director.

Aroused by information that the $5,000 improvement program at the municipal airport is apparently being carried out contrary to city council's direction, Councilman Clifford G Knarr, sponsor of the improvement, said today that he would demand that council inspect the airport to see "if the city's funds are being spent as designated."

Knarr said he would make his request at a special meeting of council to be held late this week to dispose of other city business.

Other members of council expressed their intentions of making a personal inspection of the airport. Knarr said that he believed this should be done as a group and that he would bring the matter up at the meeting.

Knarr made his announcement after learning that Mayor W. J. Locke had apparently usurped the powers of Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff by taking upon himself the authority to spend the $5,000 set up by city council for improvement of the port.

In the ordinance in which council appropriated $5,000 for maintaining and improving the airport, it was designated that the service director be supervisor of the program.

Yesterday, it was learned, however, that a man and two boys had been hired by the mayor, not the service director, to start carrying out the $5,000 project. Director Wolff said that he did not know the laborers had been hired or that they were working, adding:

"The mayor may have sent them out."

The three-man crew assigned to work on the field by the mayor continued work today.

DELAY DECISION

Officials Hold Off Action on Drafting 18-19-Year-Olds.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — A few months probably will elapse before it is decided whether 18 or 19 years old youths shall be drafted for military service.

President Roosevelt told his press conference yesterday that no decision has been made and suggested that reporters wait a few months before asking the question again.

Youths of 18 and 19 registered June 30, but present law prohibits their induction until they reach the age of 20.

Artist Portrays Midway Sea Battle U. S. Flier Watched From Raft

While Japanese destroyers and cruisers several times came close to running him down without spotting him, Ensign George H. Gay, jr., clung to a life-raft and a cushion in the choppy Pacific ocean during the great battle between United States planes and ships and Japanese forces that had attempted an attack on Midway island. From his precarious "ringside seat," Gay saw Jap aircraft carriers turned into flaming infernos by American bombs and torpedoes. The terrible drama of the scene that unfolded before the ensign's eyes has been recreated, above, by Central Press Artist Alfred J. Buescher. Inset, Ensign Gay.

FDR Gives Go-Ahead Signal For Collection of Old Tires, Galoshes.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — President Roosevelt today summoned top-ranking defense officials to a White House conference on the rubber shortage and proposed nationwide gasoline rationing as he worked on details of a gigantic scrap rubber collection campaign.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The United States, a nation without rubber for civilian needs, embarked today on a campaign to help solve that problem by collecting old hot water bottles, discarded automobile tires and tubes, and worn-out rubbers and galoshes.

There was hope, as government officials received President Roosevelt's go-ahead signal for a scrap rubber salvage campaign, that nationwide rationing of gasoline may be averted.

Details remain to be worked out and there still was no certainty that enough rubber could be collected from America's attics and basements to supply essential civilian transportation needs. In fact, some government officials who have been urging

Richland Exceeds $295,000 War Bond Quota by $50,000

The cheering word that Richland county exceeded its May quota of war savings bond purchases by $50,000 was brought to the county bond sale committee at a meeting late yesterday by Harold H. Bredlow, executive secretary of the Ohio War Savings Staff.

Revealing the county's total sales for the month for the first time, Bredlow said the purchases amounted to $345,000. The May quota in the county was $295,000. Bredlow added:

"Mansfield and Richland county took the first hurdle in their part of the nation's gigantic war financing program in their stride."

State sales were $4,000,000 ahead of quota, and the national total exceeded the goal of $6,000,000,000 by 6.7 per cent. June's figure is one-third higher — amounting to $387,000 in the county, and the quota for July and

Urges City to Fly Flags for 'Jeep Day' Activities Friday

A request that Mansfield individuals and business firms display flags Friday when a Jeep caravan will visit the city under auspices of the Treasury Department and the Army Quartermaster corps to promote sale of war savings bonds and stamps was issued today by Roger H. Bolin, chairman of the civic commitete planning the day's activities.

The Jeep parade will pass through the business district around noon, arriving at the square a few minutes after 12. After a welcoming ceremony there, the cars will disperse to a number of bond sale points in the city, and to industrial plants at the time of shift changes.

V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association, sent notices to members of the organization today suggesting they display the flag Friday.

The ceremony at the square will last only 20 minutes. Music before and after the talks will be provided by the Mansfield Senior high school band. J. G. Baird will be master of ceremonies, and Mansfield speakers will include Mayor W. J. Locke, Bolin, and Paul M. Eliot, Richland county war bond sales chairman.

Major Charles E. Robinson, officer in charge of the soldiers manning the Jeep fleet, will deliver a brief response. He is expected to tell about the versatility and sturdiness of these little reconnaissance cars used in great numbers by the Army and familar-

KEEP SILENT

Officials Decline to Explain Blackout of African Port.

LONDON —(INS)— No official explanation was available today for the unexpected blackout last night at Durban, important natal port on the southeast coast of Africa, Reuter's news agency reported today. Alarm sirens were also sounded at Maritzburg, 40 miles inland.

Durban, a city of 100,000, is approximately 800 miles southwest of the southern tip of Madagascar.

Boy, Girl Share Top Honors At St. Peter's Class Night

Four-year college and university scholarships were awarded four members of St. Peter's high school graduating class at the annual class night ceremonies last night with first honors going to Miss Marjorie Schnug, valedictorian, and John Maurer, salutatorian.

Miss Schnug also received the alumni plaque, highest scholastic award presented by the school, and several other awards for scholarship in shorthand and bookkeeping as well as for perfect attendance at compline during the four years of high school.

St. Peter's school auditorium, where the exercises were held, was filled to capacity with parents and friends who witnessed the presentation of awards. Msgr. R. C. Goebel addressed the class of 39 graduates.

The scholarship received by Miss Schnug admits her to the College of St. Francis, Joliet, Ill. Maurer won the scholarship given by the University of Dayton and Miss Margaret Schadek and Charles Kenney, winning second honors in scholarship excellency, received scholarships to the College of St. Francis and Xavier university respectively.

Maurer was presented with the

PROCEEDS WITH ROUTE 42 PAVING

State to Ask Bids This Month on Central Park, Park Ave. East Project.

Although city council has not approved the project, the state highway department is going ahead with plans for resurfacing U. S. route 42 from Central park east to the city limits and sections of East First and Hedges streets and expects to advertise for bids on the work late this month, Vance Grimes, Ashland division engineer, said today.

The highway department also announced today that the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company was the only bidder on a $97,700 project for widening and resurfacing 7.6 miles of state route 13 south of Mansfield. Since the Mansfield firm's bid of $97,428 is below the estimate, Grimes said the contract probably will be let within a few days and work on the route 13 job will be started soon. Plans call for its completition by the end of next October.

City council is expected to take action this week on the proposed $72,000 project within the city limits. The city has been asked to pay $28,600 of the cost and council has been

MURPHY IN ARMY

Gets Temporary Leave From U. S. Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Associate Justice Frank Murphy is leaving the supreme court temporarily, associates said today, to become a lieutenant colonel in the army.

Attaches of the high court reported that he would take the oath of office at the war department later today (at 3 p. m. EWT) and would leave shortly thereafter for Fort Benning, Ga., for four months of intensive training in the field and then would spend six weeks in the advanced school of infantry at Fort Benning.

He is to be attached to the office of the chief of staff, General George C. Marshall.

Murphy, 49, saw overseas service in the last war. When the United States entered that war, he entered an officers training school and in 1918 went overseas as captain in the 85th division.

SEEKS CONGRESS SEAT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Petitions for the Democratic nomination for congress in the 12th district have been filed by W. Herbert Dailey, Columbus city council president.

Beer Files, Dems Have Contest for Central Committee

A Democratic contest for state central committeeman from the 17th district developed today when Charles M. Beer, Ashland, filed petitions for the office with the Richland county board of elections.

Freer Bittinger, also of Ashland, filed for the committee post several days ago. Bittinger is state Democratic chairman. Beer has accused Bittinger of trying to perpetuate himself as state party chairman. E. B. Kallmerten, Mansfield, is the present district chairman.

C. J. Pittenger of near Shelby filed in Elyria today for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 27th-29th district which includes Richland, Ashland, Medina, and Lorain counties. The two Republican incumbents, P. H. Rogers, and Joseph Jameson of Lorain county and Ralph A. Winter of Medina county have announced they will file for state senator.

The primary filing deadline is 6:30 p. m. Friday, but there has been no rush of candidates at the Richland county election board headquarters. Only eight candidates had filed at noon today for county and district offices.

Only One of Crew Lost in Northwest Sinking; Eight Men Injured.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — A medium-sized British merchant vessel has been torpedoed in the Atlantic and survivors have been landed at east coast ports, the navy announced today.

(By Associated Press)

The torpedoings of an American merchantman off the Pacific coast and of a Norwegian vessel in the western Atlantic brought the announced toll of submarine-sunk Allied and neutral ships to 262 today, counting those lost in both areas.

Meanwhile an indication of the staggering cost in money of the sinkings came from the American Institute of Marine Underwriters, which announced yesterday that insurance companies had lost $46,486,068 on marine insurance policies in the first six months of this year.

Seventh submarine victim in the Pacific between the west coast and Hawaii since Pearl Harbor, the U. S. merchantman went down Sunday with the loss of only one of the crew of 60 aboard, the navy announced last night.

Survivors landed at a west coast port yesterday.

The Atlantic sinking was the 225th officially announced since Dec. 7 and the fourth reported by the navy this week for that area.

The Pacific northwest torpedoing officially announced by the navy last night, was disclosed after the ship's master, Captain Lyle G. Havens, 48, San Carlos, Calif., brought his crew men here and said "I'm glad to report we lost only one of the sixty aboard."

Watch Synthetic Rubber Made In 10 Seconds.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— To the expressed astonishment of senators, who had just been told that the B. F. Goodrich company planned ultimately to produce 165,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually a company executive compounded some in 10 seconds today and bounced it on the floor.

K. D. Smith of Akron, O., assistant to the vice president in charge of the factory operations, poured what he called "liquid Ameripol latex" into a beaker, added acetic acid, squeezed the surplus liquid out, and bounced the ball.

Smith said that 20 cents a pound would be a "very fair" price for the synthetic rubber and demonstrated to the senate agriculture subcommittee a number of tires in which it had been used.

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — George White, noted New York theatrical producer of "George White's Scandals" fame, filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in federal court today. He listed assets at $500 and liabilities at more than $100,000. White declared in the petition that he was unemployed at the present time.

Admits Loss of One Carrier, 2 Warships Hit

Claims Japanese Troops Take Part In Attack on Aleutians; U. S. Has No Further Word From Alaskan Area; Japs 'Score' Fails to Tally.

(By Associated Press)

Imperial Tokyo headquarters sought to minimize the gravity of the Japanese naval disaster at Midway today but acknowledged that United States forces had sunk an aircraft carrier, heavily damaged another carrier and damaged a cruiser.

Official United States reports have listed 16 and possibly 18 Japanese warships sunk or damaged before the enemy fleet limped off in retreat.

Moreover, an eye-witness account by Ensign George H. Gay, jr., 25-year-old U. S. Navy flier, declared three of Japan's aircraft carriers, including two of the 26,900-ton Kaga-Akagi class, were seen to burst into flames under attack by American torpedo planes. Tokyo did not specify the class of the carrier it admitted lost.

Tokyo headquarters also reported that Japanese army troops were used in attacking the U. S.-owned Aleutian islands off Alaska on Sunday, Tokyo time, (Saturday, Alaska time)—three days after the Dutch Harbor raids—and declared they "are continuing operations in this area."

No details were given as to whether it was a sizable invasion of the strategic chain of islands which stretch across the Bering sea from Alaska toward Japan.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet, described the situation in the far north as "confused" several days ago, but there has been no hint from any source other than Tokyo of any Japanese troop landings in the Aleutians.

"On June 7," a Japanese communique said, "naval units, in closest cooperation with troops of the army destroyed a number of enemy positions on the Aleutian islands and are continuing the operations in this area."

Japanese planes raided Dutch Harbor in the Aleutians Wednesday, June 3.

Belatedly lifting the veil of its secrecy on the battles of Midway and Dutch Harbor, the Japanese command gave its version of the conflicts, with its scoresheet bearing no relation to the account of staggering Japanese naval losses as reported by United States war bulletins.

The Tokyo communique acknowledged the loss of only a single Japanese aircraft carrier and damage to two other warships, while claiming that two U. S. aircraft carriers and a large transport were sunk.

Here are the contrasting tallies:

JAPAN CLAIMS

U. S. Losses.

Sunk—Two 19,900-ton carriers.
Damaged—One transport.
Shot down—134 planes.

Japanese Losses.

Sunk—One carrier.
Damaged—One carrier, one cruiser.
Missing—35 planes.

UNITED STATES CLAIMS

U. S. Losses.

Sunk—One destroyer.
Damaged—One carrier.

Japanese Losses.

Sunk—Two and possibly three carriers, one destroyer.
Damaged—Three battleships, eight to 11 other ships.

Tokyo headquarters said two U. S. aircraft carriers of the Enterprise and Hornet types, each normally carrying 2,072

FURIOUS: Bloody Sevastopol Battle Rages Into Sixth Day

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted today that German troops had stormed deeper into the fortifications of Sevastopol, last Soviet stronghold in the Crimea, while the Russians said they had littered the battlefield with 2,500 Nazi dead in yesterday's fighting alone.

Soviet dispatches said the Red armies had not yielded "a single line" to the Germans although the fight was growing hourly more intense, with the Nazis incessantly attacking by land and air.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, conceded that German infantry had penetrated to a hilly sector, where it was trying to capture two heights, but declared that the battle generally still raged at the approaches to the city without major change.

Today marked the sixth day of furious assault by German forces which have beseiged the great Black sea naval base for more than seven months.

A Soviet communique said Sevastopol's defense batteries scattered a German infantry regiment, killed many of its men, knocked out two dozen German tanks and 26 planes, and checked the Nazi offensive.

On the north African front, both the German and Italian communiques acknowledged that Lieut.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's armies, supported by American-made tanks and planes, were heavily counter attacking.

British imperial headquarters said an 11th Axis assault on Bir Hacheim, southern anchor of the 50-mile British defense line, had

COUNTER: Chinese Hurling Strong Attacks Near Nanchang

(By United Press)

CHUNGKING—Chinese guerrillas and regulars have launched strong counter-attacks near Nanchang, provincial capital of Kiangsi and in central Anhwei province to offset the mounting pressure of twin Japanese drives along the vital Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, military dispatches reported today.

The official Central News agency said the Chinese had recaptured strategic points near Wenshoukung, 12 miles west of Nanchang, and were pressing forward in a drive aimed at the provincial capital.

Observers here believed this drive, directed at Nanchang from the west, might divert a substantial force of Japanese troops now concentrating on seizing the 150-mile stretch of the Nanchang-Hangchow railway still in Chinese hands.

Along the railway in western Chekiang, the key city of Chussien (Chuchow) was in its fifth day of siege. There were no new reports from the beleaguered air aid rail base only 700 miles west of Japan, but it was believed the Chinese garrison still was holding out behind the city's walled defenses.

Central said a Chinese drive in central Anhwei province, northeast of Kiangsi, was developing. The Chinese were said to have captured the town of Motien east of Hofei on Sunday. Another Chinese column, Central said, was only 10 miles northwest of Hofei, a strategic

JAPS ATTEMPT TO WHITEWASH MIDWAY DEFEAT

Admits Loss of One Carrier, Damage to Two Warships; Claims Alaska 'Invasion.'

men and about 100 planes, were sent to the bottom in the battle off Midway Island. The U. S. transport was listed as sunk at Dutch Harbor.

The Japanese command said its naval forces attacked not only the U. S. naval base at Dutch Harbor but also "the whole group of the Aleutians . . . and continued these attacks on the enemy positions on June 4th and 5th."

In breaking its long silence, imperial headquarters dismissed the three-day battle of Midway as a brief but heavy assault on a single day, June 5, which "inflicted heavy damage on enemy naval units and naval and air force establishments."

Significantly, however, the Japanese for the first time did not claim victory over the U. S. naval forces which Tokyo many weeks ago declared were "wiped out."

The Japanese announcement on the naval battles off Midway island and Dutch Harbor was the first acknowledgment from Tokyo even that such encounters had taken place.

Circumstances which cast suspicion on it included:

First of all, Tokyo's scoresheet bears no relation to the facts as they have been given not only in official United States war bulletins but also by the eye-witness account of Ensign George H. Gay, jr., of Houston, Tex., who saw three Japanese aircraft carriers burst into flame while he drifted on the sea in the battle area.

The Japanese account, indicating that the action at Midway was only a quickly-ended naval bombardment, apparently leaves a glaring gap. United States communiques have pointed out that a line of transports was along with the strong Japanese armada and these ships would have been present only if a landing operation were intended.

There had been prior indications—including Tokyo's long silence—that Japan's fleet was giving Tokyo no success story to report.

Although nothing on the battle had appeared until today in Japan's own propaganda channels, the Berlin radio broadcast an item yesterday from the Tokyo newspaper Asahi in which an unidentified admiral warned that "one cannot always expect victories."

The record alone casts doubt on Japan's veracity. The case of the United States cruiser Marblehead, for example, is one where the test does not depend on rival communique claims. The Japanese announced last March that the Marblehead was sunk in the Indian ocean and, in April, the Tokyo spokesman said specifically she had gone down off Java.

Since then, the Marblehead, battered but very much afloat, has reached a United States base under her own power after a 13,000-mile voyage.

Claim Japs Gain Aleutian Foothold

BERLIN — (German Broadcast Recorded by United Press in New York)—German advices from Tokyo said today that Japanese naval units and army troops have landed in the Aleutian islands of Alaska and "gained a firm foothold" and that landing operations continue.

The Transocean agency, in a Tokyo account, quoted a communique of the Japanese imperial command as authority for the statement.

(The Japanese broadcast communique, however, did not directly claim a landing on the Aleutians but spoke cryptically of naval units in cooperation with army positions" on the Aleutian islands.")

The dispatch from Tokyo pointed out that the strategic Aleutians consist of about 150 islands covering an area of about 14,700 miles.

Speculate On Jap Peace Offensive

ANKARA, Turkey—(UP)—Diplomatic sources renewed speculation today on the possibility of an impending Japanese-inspired peace offensive.

The purpose of this supposed offensive would be to bring about a settlement of the European war preliminary to a world-wide settlement, but authoritative Allied sources said the chances were summed up accurately by Russian comment that "peace between Russia and Germany now is about as likely as frying snowballs."

Japanese diplomatic efforts and newspaper comment appeared to be largely responsible for the speculation current here. The Turkish newspaper Cumhuriyet, which is usually sympathetic toward Germany, said in an editorial that "it is not considered improbable that a peace accord can be achieved between Germany and Russia and Japan may be preparing the ground work."

On the English channel front, bad weather kept the RAF's city-destroying offensive against Germany grounded for the third night this month.

Germans Promise New Reign of Terror

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—With 275 Czechs already slain in retaliation, the Germans made known today that the assassination of Reinhard Heydrich would mark the beginning of new, sweeping punitive measures not only in dismembered Czecho-Slovakia but throughout all the restive occupied countries.

Continuing attacks against occupation armies in the north, west and east confront Germany with a potential second or third front and require vigorous counter-action, dispatches from Berlin said.

Prague, Paris, Amsterdam, and all Poland and Yugoslavia were regarded here as likely to feel first the effects of the increased death penalties.

Executions up to now have been averaging ten a day in occupied France. Czechs have been shot in groups of 25 or more at a time since the attack which took the life of Heydrich.

RAF Grounded, Air War Subsides

LONDON — (UP) — Royal Air Force long range bombers were grounded during the night and the war in the air subsided to its lowest ebb since the Royal Air Force started its devastation offensive 11 days ago.

The British air and home security ministries announced that a few German planes had appeared briefly over the east coast and dropped bombs in one district.

SET UP NEW STATION TO SPEED SUGAR REGISTRATION IN CITY

Rationing and school officials took steps today to speed the canning sugar registration now going on for residents of the 10 townships served by the Mansfield rationing board.

James Bailey, county rationing coordinator, announced this morning that a second registration station would open this afternoon in the basement of the courthouse, for the special convenience of residents of townships outside of Mansfield.

Today's registration at the courthouse, set for 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., was open only to residents of Jefferson, Worthington, and Monroe townships. Hours of registration there tomorrow and Friday will be from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The Thursday registration is for residents of Perry, Troy, and Washington townships, and Friday's for residents of Mifflin, Springfield, and Sandusky townships. No alphabetical arrangement will be used there, as is followed at John Simpson junior high school, the principal registration point for the 10 townships.

Registration hours at John Simpson are from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. daily. The alphabetical schedule set-up originally announced continues in force there, and residents of Mansfield and the rest of Madison township are to continue registering there. Those in other townships may continue to register at the school—observing the alphabetical schedule, or at the courthouse.

Today's registration at the school is for persons whose names start with the letters E and F, and tomorrow's those with names starting with G, H, and I.

Harry J. Dotson, principal of the school, who is directing the force of 30 teachers acting as registrars, announced that the barber shop "take-a-number" system would be inaugurated at the school this afternoon and continue for the rest of the registration.

Henceforth, each applicant will be given a number as he or she enters the building, and then may take a seat in the school auditorium until the number is called. Heretofore, crowds waiting to register were forced to stand outside or in the school corridors. More than 100 left Monday, when the total registration was less than 600.

All of Monday's leftovers were taken care of Tuesday, Dotson said, and the registration yesterday totalled 1,200, bringing the total to 1,800 to date.

Judge Williams is completing his first full term on the supreme court bench. He served on Erie county's common pleas bench for 10 years and in 1924 was elevated to the court of appeals of the sixth district. After 10 years on the appellate bench, he was elected in 1934 to the state supreme court.

MILLIONAIRE DIES OF THIRST ON DESERT TRAIL IN ARIZONA

(By United Press)

KINGMAN, Ariz.—The body of a man who perished from thirst in the desert was identified today as that of Benjamin Pierce Cheney, 76, once a multi-millionaire, of Boston.

Lee Eaton, a cowbody, found the body Monday on a road that is hardly more than a track, in the desert. His automobile was found yesterday 13 miles away. It had been stalled in a dry wash about 64 miles from here. An empty canteen and water bottle were alongside the body. Cheney evidently had set out for help and water after his car stalled. He had been dead four or five days. The body was buried here.

He was the husband of Julia Arthur, well known on the stage in her day. She was the former Ida Lewis of Hamilton, Ont. They were married in a brilliant society wedding in Covington, Ky., in Feb. 1898. She survives.

Cheney still was very wealthy, a director of several banks and trust companies, having inherited a fortune from his father who was president of the Santa Fe railroad and a director of Wells Fargo Express company. Cheney re-organized the Santa Fe during the depression and at one time was the largest holder of its stock.

He was graduated from Harvard in 1890.

First Officer E. W. Nystrom, Oakland, Calif., a former economics major at Washington State college, said he saw what some described as the submarine and that "it might have been part of our ship's debris. I fired two parachute signal flares. The wreckage disappeared."

"There is no doubt we were torpedoed," said the captain.

The explosion smashed one of two lifeboats, Captain Havens said, but the entire personnel got away in the remaining lifeboat and two life rafts within 10 minutes.

He said the attack occurred about 2:20 p. m. (Pacific War Time) Sunday. The lifeboat started for shore at dawn Monday after "hanging around the scene on the chance someone heard our SOS. It seems the explosion wrecked the wireless and no one could hear it."

The lifeboat, towed by a passing fishing boat, reached a haven Monday night and gave the position of the two life rafts. Allied planes and a corvette found the rafts and their survivors yesterday.

Demands Small Planes Join Fight On Subs

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Sen. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.) today demanded that 2,000 small planes and pilots in the Civil Air Patrol be put on active duty under such famous flyers as Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker to wipe out the submarine menace along the eastern seaboard.

Emphasizing that the nation is engaged in total war, Brooks said:

"It is up to us to make use of every resource at our command. In the Civil Air Patrol we have a resource that is not being used—at least to the fullest possible extent. More than that, it is not on active duty except on a volunteer basis at some points in Virginia and east."

Brooks loosed his blast soon after learning that the army and navy have asked for 200 blimps to patrol the seaboard.

Brooks said that registrations of the civil aeronautics authority show there are thousands of small, privately-owned planes available for service, perhaps as many as 25,000. Of these, 2,000 are equipped with two-way radio making them suitable for submarine patrol duty.

Experts See Japs Pressing Sub War

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Citing mounting Japanese warship losses in six months of blitzkrieg sea warfare, naval experts asserted today that the Nipponese in the future may rely more heavily on submarines for harassing attacks on United Nations shipping, island bases and coastal cities.

Since comparatively few Jap subs have been reported sunk to date, while losses in enemy surface warcraft has been extremely heavy, these sources contended that the Nipponese may press most of their submersibles into service in an attempt to stem the flow of reinforcements and supplies to Pacific bases which might be used for an American offensive.

Argentina Protests Sinking of Tanker

BUENOS AIRES — (U.P.) — Argentina, formally protesting to Germany and Italy the torpedoing of the tanker Victoria, on April 17, charged today that Axis communiques were circumstantial evidence that an Axis submarine had been guilty.

Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu said Argentina had protested "because it is this government's imperative duty to denounce aggression committee against a ship flying the Argentine flag, sailing as a neutral through a free sea, engaged in peaceful commerce—all without warning or previous investigation that might have justified capture under international law."

Argentina, he said, could not establish the identity of the submarine from material evidence. But the fact that the Victoria was carrying a cargo of linseed oil to the United States and also the fact that "all ships sunk until now carrying cargo to the United States have been sunk by the Axis, according to their own official communiques," were considered sufficient circumstantial evidence that an Axis submarine tried to sink the Victoria."

RUBBER SALVAGE PROGRAM BEGINS

FDR Gives Go-Ahead Signal For Collection of Old Tires, Galoshes.

gasoline rationing as a rubber conservation measure were skeptical that a salvage campaign would solve the serious rubber shortage.

The war production board and the office of price administration have been urging nationwide gasoline rationing as a means of conserving the irreplaceable tires on millions of automobiles. They would limit the amount of gasoline available for non-essential driving to approximately four gallons a week.

President Roosevelt called for the rubber salvage campaign yesterday to find out just how much scrap rubber is available. Estimates vary widely. One report of the bureau of census showed estimates $500,000 tons apart.

It is not certain yet which of the government agencies will handle the program. However, Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes is scheduled to receive from the oil industry soon an offer to collect rubber scrap through the nation's thousands of filling stations.

The office of emergency management has been working on plans for a more general salvage campaign that would have started within a month. It would have included all scarce materials.

The scrap rubber campaign will have no effect on the gasoline rationing system in the eastern states. There the problem is one of supply, the tankers that ordinarily brought it from gulf ports have been taken off those routes because of the submarine menace. The permanent program for the eastern states will go into effect as scheduled early next month.

Regardless of the results of the rubber campaign, the president said, civilians should do everything possible to conserve their tires. Under no circumstances, he said, there would be new tires for the average civilian.

SEEKS COUNCIL INSPECTION OF CITY AIRPORT

Councilman Wants to Know If $5,000 Fund's Being Spent as Council Designated.

mer member of the finance committee, criticized not only the mayor's methods in over-ruling Director Wolff but the whole airport improvement program "as it now stands."

"When the original finance committee approved $5,000 for the airport this year," said Miller, "it intended that the money be used for permanent improvements, not those requiring $200 and $100 dribbles. We hoped that at least a portion of a runway could be built. We intended to give at least $5,000 every year and more if possible."

Councilman Miller said that the new Republican-controlled finance committee, however, set up a "maintenance" program and that the administration planned to "dribble" the funds away.

"I feel that Mayor Locke overstepped his bounds when he took it upon himself to hire employes with funds which council had directed to the control of the service director," said Miller. "If we had wanted the mayor to handle the airport program, we would have designated him as the supervisor."

Councilman Knarr said that council was interested in developing Mansfield's airport and that he felt an inspection trip was needed to acquaint council members with the problems facing the airport. He said he would ask other members to investigate the project with him at the meeting this week.

Other members stated that they believed there should have been more cooperation between the mayor's and service-safety director's offices in the program.

"We think of those offices as being nearly one," said one of the councilmen. "It's surprising to hear that the mayor would launch a program without taking the service director into his confidence."

Councilmen C. N. Shultz and George C. Kyle, Republican leaders in council, refused to comment on the mayor's usurping the service director's powers. Both said they knew "nothing whatsoever" about the ordinance.

Both councilmen repeated this even after they had been reminded they had heard it read six times in council meetings and had voted for it at least five times.

"Let's talk about parking meters or something else," said Kyle, "I don't know anything about the airport and don't care to discuss it."

"I've been out of touch with the problem lately," said Shultz," and I don't know what's being done out there at the airport."

All nine of the councilmen voted in favor of the ordinance appropriating $5,000 for the maintenance and improvement of the port. The original ordinance was passed on Feb. 3 but was amended on May 5 to allow payment of the wages of laborers hired in violation of the ordinance.

The original ordinance called for the work to be done by contract but laborers were hired by the city and sent out to the port. Their wages, which amounted to less than $200 were held up by City Auditor Paul L. Kelley until council amended the ordinance, authorizing the payment of the wages.

The amended ordinance provided "that the director of public service is hereby authorized to advertise for bids and enter into contracts OR to employ laborers under his own supervision and hire equipment, as may be according to law and best interests of the city."

Other councilmen had the following remarks to make:

Paul Bush—"I believe we should get as much out of our money as possible. We appropriated the $5,000 for definite purposes and want definite work done in the most efficient manner possible. I believe the office of the mayor and service director should cooperate closely in order to carry out this program. The service director should know of every move made in the program."

Michael Mihalik — "The hiring of laborers by the mayor rather than the service director seems to be a direct contradiction to the letter of the law. And what were they doing with such equipment, digging a Victory garden? That wasn't the way I expected the program to be carried out when I voted for it."

Russell Porch—"As far as I can see it's just a legal phrase. The mayor and the service director should cooperate to carry out the administrative duties. Council appropriated the money for the improvements. It's the administration's job to see it's carried out properly."

Roy W. Vaughn—"I don't remember the wording of the ordinance but I expected that the board of control which is made up of the mayor and service director would handle the technical aspects of the job. My only interest would be if the job wasn't being done as it was supposed to be done. Council's inspection trip should determine that."

Councilman James R. Anderson could not be reached for comment.

ASSERTS FRENCH PRO-AMERICAN

Leahy Says People Hope For Defeat of Axis.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The people of France are almost unanimously pro-American and hopeful of an Axis defeat, Admiral William D. Leahy, the recalled ambassador to France, said last night.

Leahy said Marshal Henri Philippe Petain was under "constant and cruel pressure" from the Germans but,except for the agreement between France and Japan in Indo-China, had given the Axis no material military assistance since the armistice.

Leahy was recalled when the pro-German Pierre Laval seized control of the Vichy government.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1942.

Cultivate the art of being friendly—even when you have nothing to sell.

Hearing of an automobile accident nowadays, first thought is to ask: "Were the tires damaged?"

Light voting has been reported from all state primaries thus far held—indicating that voters are reserving their strength for the November finals.

Many Peace Formulas In the Making

MANY MINDS are at work trying to evolve some practicable design for a peaceful world, for application when present hostilities end—as they will sometime in the future.

Dr. Francis S. Onderdonk, student of world affairs and former member of the faculty of the University of Michigan, spoke in Mansfield yesterday on the subject, "America's Role In the World Crisis," and his proposal is that security can be accomplished through a federation of nations unselfishly devoted to the common purpose of fair treatment to all peoples and at the same time maintaining sufficient force to prevent acts of aggression by war-minded dictators of countries that, for a time, do not qualify for acceptance into the federation. Dr. Onderdonk's proposal is a union of the United States with the six English-speaking democracies as a foundation for an all-inclusive democratic union, which is along the line of the World Federation of Democracies, advocated by Clarence K. Streit in his book, "Union Now."

A flaw in this formula is its apparent restriction to "English-speaking democracies" as it seems to thus set up an idea of superiority which, under present conditions, might react seriously against eventual agreement among nations now aligned against the Axis powers.

Russia, China, Great Britain, Mexico, the formerly independent nations of Europe and the countries of South America—all of these have methods and policies of government that differ in various ways from those to which people of the United States are accustomed. Not all of them are "English-speaking," nor are all of them democracies, although they may be aiming toward that accomplishment as their people reach self-governing ability.

The twenty-seven United Nations, as they are now co-operating in a war for self preservation, can be made into a powerful federation for world betterment—but not through repetition of such policies as were pursued by victors following the 1918 Armistice, or resumption of the exploitation that has heretofore marked the spread of imperialism throughout the world.

A point that is sometimes overlooked is that all peoples, within the confines of their own legitimately acquired territory, have the right to decide upon their own plan of government and their own way of life—and that neither "English-speaking" nor "democracy" is a prerequisite to honorable participation in efforts to advance civilization and establish human freedom and a more abundant life throughout the world.

Memorial Building Serves Well

AS THE NEEDS of another war-time period are being met in this community Mansfield is fortunate in having a Memorial building, which is dedicated to the patriotic purpose of commemorating the heroism of Madison township soldiers and sailors who have passed on, and also to contribute to the comfort and convenience of living veterans and service men.

Bearing the full title of Madison Township Soldiers and Sailors Memorial building, this structure, which is centrally located on Park avenue west, was originally designed as a lasting expression of appreciation to veterans of the Civil war and as a tribute to those of this vicinity who had served in earlier wars.

For many years it served as a meeting place for the G. A. R. and affiliated organizations and the club rooms will long be remembered as the scene of many pleasant gatherings where aging Civil war veterans passed their leisure time with congenial comrades.

Later the Spanish-American war veterans of this community were welcomed into participation in the hospitality of this building and a part of it continues in use by them, thus serving its intended purpose.

Size to which the American Legion quickly grew, after the organization of McVey post following the end of World war I, precluded possibility of this veteran group being adequately housed in the Memorial building and it was not long until the present commodious home was secured at 126 Park avenue west.

The Memorial building, in its uses and upkeep, is under supervision of a board of trustees consisting of representatives of various patriotic organizations, and it cannot be doubted that in the future, as in the past, this building will be made to serve, to the extent of its size and facilities, the past and present military service men and their organizations in this city and township.

Aleutian Islands Pop Into News

TIME was when anything that happened to the Aleutian Islands definitely was not news. Vitus Bering, the Dane who, exploring for the Russian government, gave his name to the strait, discovered them in 1728. In 1867, as part of the Alaska purchase, they were transferred by Russia to the United States. They are a headquarters for whalers. That is just about all that, till now, could be said about them. If the old saying is true, "Happy the land that has no history," the Aleutian Islands ought to be about the happiest region on earth. Now they are on the front page.

All these years they have been waiting for their location to bring in dividends. Situated on the direct air line to Vladivostok and Japan, they are going to be more and more familiar to travelers.

'Win the War' Stamp Coming

NOW it is the out-moded "for defense" 3-cent postage stamp that is to be brought up to date by substitution of a "win the war" stamp that is to be in readiness early in July, according to announcement by the postoffice department.

The new stamp is to have the "V" motif worked out by using the wings of the American eagle, encircled with 13 stars and carrying a band with the slogan, "Win the War."

While the 3-cent denomination is most generally used, it appears likely that issuance of one and two-cent stamps in accord with the "win the war" theme will follow.

BETTER WAIT FOR THEM TO HATCH

Berlin Bulletin Bares Beer Ban

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

TO SAY that wartime Washington was interested in recent news that Germany is to stop brewing beer on July 1, for the "duration," is to express it entirely too mildly.

Guessers at the situation in Naziland were outright excited over the tidings. They're discussing them as a serious development. The report apparently is well authenticated, too.

It was scooped in by British listeners from a Berlin broadcast, the authors of which evidently didn't realize the rejoicing it would inspire in the world's democratic countries.

This isn't a mere josh, either.

It's the consensus of plenty of good judgment, by no means jocular in its nature, that the Germans must be in pretty desperate dietary straits any time they cut out beer.

If they simply were putting themselves on rations it wouldn't attract so much attention. But to swear off completely?—oh, gee!

According to Dr. Howard D. Fishburn, a medical attache of the United States embassy in Herr Hitler's capital when Nazi-American hostilities started, the Teutonic folk "are hungry all the time," as he puts it.

The doctor himself, though, admits it never had occurred to him that they were sufficiently famine-stricken to suspend beer production 100 per cent. How much they've got stashed away, in bottles and tanks, to last them, he doesn't know, but he surmises that they'll need an ocean of it to keep them lubricated, up to their kind of requirements, for very long.

No Shortage Here.

To be sure, it's planned here, in the U. S. A., to end the distillation of "hard drinks" for the rest of the "duration" soon, in order to concentrate on our alcoholic output for industrial purposes, impossible for human consumption.

However, we've got on hand an adequate quantity to keep us going for a matter of some years before American bars have to close.

American "soft drinks" are scarcer than hard ones right now. Our last siege of prohibition was a lesson to Yankee distillers. They distilled and distilled up to a maximum following that experience. Today, they say, we're in no immediate danger of a shortage.

There also is a threat of an American dearth of bottled beer.

That, though, isn't predicated upon its military undesirability as beer, for itself alone. It's because caps on the bottles have been too exclusively metallic, and the metal is demanded for military purposes. Maybe the brewers will hit on some substitute, such as doctored paper. Or, at the worst, the stuff will be available out of the "kag."

As might have been expected, there's a renewal in our own midst of prohibition talk.

Yet it isn't overly energetic thus far.

I suppose the "drys" were considerably dampened by their previous attempt at prohibition.

Prohibition's Flop.

I very well know Dr. J. M. Doran, their last national enforcement officer. Over a dram, the doc has told me repeatedly that it's an impossible form of regulation, though he did his best to make it stick while on the job.

So prohibition, being so recent and fully remembered, is middling hard to reinstall this soon.

True, there's a bit of agitation in prohibition's favor in the neighborhood of army and navy posts. Senator Theodore G. Bilbo of Mississippi is plugging for it vigorously, and he has some support. Even Bilbo, though, doesn't ask for it on an all-out basis.

Listen World!

Wedded to a Stranger

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SO THERE'S A WAR. But we can't—mustn't—think about it constantly. We've got to keep our grip on the old familiar world we once knew and are trying to save. We've got to work at the same old unfinished problems.

Marriage, for instance. There's a job that none of us has done perfectly. Many of us don't even understand what it's all about. This strange business of a man and a woman trying to know each other when they don't even know themselves, trying to become one when, to the end of their lives, they will always be partially strangers. It's one of the deepest mysteries of the human plan, this thing we call marriage; yet one of the most urgent necessities. Life is so lonely. We must have someone, even at a great price.

But, having united our lives with that other one, we can never be content to let him or her follow his or her own pattern. We must possess them, peer and pry and poke into the most secret recesses of their spirit, and all the time we kill the thing we would most cherish, the mystery and sanctity of love.

There's a deep and wise paragraph in John Steinbeck's book "The Moon Is Down." As you know, if you've read it, this is a heart-rending book about war. But there are small detours in it that help you forget the guns.

Remember the old Mayor who had been "Mayor so long that he was the Idea-Mayor in the town?" So simple and kind that few ever suspected his tremendous wisdom. And now he must do the hardest thing in all his life; he must meet the steel-helmeted men who had conquered his village. But he was not to face this difficult passage alone.

"From behind him Madame emerged, small and wrinkled and fierce. She considered that she had created this man out of whole cloth, had thought him up, and she was sure that she could do a better job if she had it to do again. Only once or twice in her life had she ever understood all of him, but the part of him which she knew, she knew intricately and well. No little appetite or pain, no carelessness of meanness in him escaped her; no thought or dream or longing in him ever reached her. And yet several times in her life she had seen the stars."

"She considered that she had created this man out of whole cloth." I wonder if there ever was a wife who did not both publicly and privately preen herself with this notion. Was there ever a woman who did not think she could make a man over altogether if only she had a free grip on him. And doubtless men would feel the same way if they were not so busy bringing home the bacon.

We know each other so well—and so pitifuly little. We see the surface differences and imperfections, but the inner meaning of the other's spirit escapes us. Why should it not escape us? Why should we try to possess that other life and pour it into our pattern?

We fall in love because we are mysterious to each other; there is something in that other soul which we lack. Then we turn around and ruthlessly wreck all the mystery. What a pity! If only we were half as considerate of the other fellow's privacy as we are of our precious lawns! But no. We just got to romp all over the premises and know each hidden nook and cranny.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, June 10, 1922.

Three prominent Japanese from Tokyo visited Mansfield during the week and were shown through several industrial plants, so that they might become better informed on American manufacturing methods.

Health census of Richland county was completed, under auspices of Child Health Demonstration.

Mrs. W. S. Blair, 73, died at her home, 259 Glessner avenue.

William B. Wolff was elected grand sentinal of the state council of United Commercial Travelers.

Auto driven by A. D. Lynch was badly damaged in collision at corner of Diamond and Sixth streets.

Miss Helen Race and Francis H. Beam were married by Rev. Foster C. Anderson.

Miss Margaret H. McClellan and George W. Casperson were married by Rev. G. A. Kienle.

Sixteen little friends attended party given for Marianna Springer on her sixth birthday anniversary.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On June 10, 1940, Count Ciano of Italy delivered his country's message to the French ambassador declaring Italy at war with France on June 11. Soon after an identical statement was handed the ambassador of Great Britain. It was also on this day, while speaking to the graduating class of the University of Virginia, that President Roosevelt declared, "The hand that held the dagger has struck it into the back of its neighbor."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Admiral King Slashes Red Tape, Makes More Fighters Available

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Behind Admiral King's forthright order slashing navy red tape 50 per cent and ordering more navy officers out of Washington, was an interesting comparison with the Japanese navy, conducted backstage by some of the president's advisers.

Americans, recently familiar with Japan, have reported that the Japanese navy is staffed by only about 1,000 personnel in Tokyo. In contrast, the navy department in Washington has more than 30,000—not including the navy yard.

The Japanese navy also is reported to have cut red tape and government reports to the bone, and it gives widest latitude to commanders at sea. The U. S. Navy also gives wide latitude to commanders in distant posts, such as Admiral Leary in New Zealand, Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor. But in home waters, especially in anti-submarine warfare along the east coast, insiders say the navy has suffered from a constant stream of reports and orders to and from Washington requiring a tremendous staff for the paper work alone.

Now Admiral King offers promotions to officers who will decrease their Washington bureaus rather than increase them; who will write fewer instead of more reports; who will provide more personnel for fighting instead of red tape.

Gasoline Czar.

THE one-man dynamo who runs the gas rationing system of the U.S.A. is a preacher's son and a former professor of economics. Though one of the most harassed men in Washington, he is constantly on the verge of breaking into a broad smile.

Only 35 years old, he has grey hair about the ears, thin hair on top, works so late into the night that his wife, mother of a newborn boy, seldom sees him. "I generally make the two a. m. feeding," he says.

Joel Dean was born in Vermont, schooled in California, and has a doctor's degree from Harvard, where he wrote a thesis on small loans. He spent a year as European manager of a travel bureau, two years as traveling salesman for Interntional Business Machine, and seven years as teacher and research expert.

As a fellow economist, he always admired Leon Henderson, but never met him until he came to Washington less than a year ago.

To effect his own economy in gasoline, he formed a "Drive-In Club" with four other OPA officials. They take turns driving to the office from Arlington, Va., across the river.

When the brickbats fly in the OPA office, Dean recalls that his father, a Congregational minister, wanted him to be a missionary on a South Sea island.

"Many people," says Dean, "wish that I had fulfilled that mission."

Langer's Mimi.

SENATOR William Langer was the picture of meekness as he sat silent and intent during debate on the committee recommendation that he was unfit to sit in the senate. However, the bulky, cigar-chewing North Dakotan has been anything but meek since the vote to accept him as a member in good standing. Some of his antics have colleagues banjo-eyed.

He almost broke up a foreign relations committee meeting the other day with a loud tirade against the Alaskan highway that was reminiscent of the outbursts of Huey Long. But Langer has cut his widest swath behind the scenes in the privileges and elections committee.

The committee is considering expense claims incident to the contest over Langer's seat. One item is $30,000 for legal fees filed by lawyers for both sides. Another is a $2,100 bill from Langer for "personal expenses," such as $1.50 a day for food, plane trips, hotel rooms, etc.

But the committee was completely floored by still another claim made by Langer. In a letter to Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, committee chairman, the Dakotan demanded an additional $2,100 "in cash," for "certain other expenses," chief among which were:

Maintaining "two households," in Washington and North Dakota.

Railroad fare for his family to Washington. Langer contended that, because of the contest, his family had to remain in North Dakota "instead of driving to Washington with me in my car."

"Private tutoring fees" for his daughter, Mimi, "whom I had to take out of school." Also, Langer claimed that Mimi's health "broke down" as a result of the charges made against him, and he feels that the taxpayers should foot the bill for her medical and living expenses at a health resort, plus transportation to and from Washington.

Army Hour Program.

JAMMING" radio programs is one of the recognized weapons of modern warfare. But it is a two-edged sword, and the war department radio branch is ready to swing on the Axis if the prize Army Hour, on Sundays, is jammed again.

Jamming by manufactured static or other interference is feasible in the United States only on short-wave broadcasts. The Army Hour features short-wave talks from all over the world, made by such noted personages as Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, General MacArthur, General Wavell, and others. The most recent case of jamming was during a talk by a high ranking army officer from the Dutch island of Curacao. A piano banged loudly all the time he spoke.

Winston Churchill's latest speech, which came on the radio immediately before the Army Hour, was jammed by a gutteral Teutonic voice carefully observing Churchill's own pauses in an effort to escape detection.

These two cases of jamming were traced by triangulation to Axis broadcasting stations. The Army proposes to retaliate if this deliberate interference doesn't stop.

War Flashes.

THE NAZIS have banned the printing of new editions of Christian catechisms and devotional books. Alleged reason is lack of paper. But while prohibiting these publications, millions of copies of a booklet on Nazi religion were distributed to German soldeirs. . . . Guerrilla warfare in Russia has become so highly organized that every third guerrilla now is armed with an automatic rifle. . . . Courageous Dutch school teachers are following in the footsteps of their heroic Norwegian colleagues, who defied Nazi-stooge Quisling. More than 1,200 Dutch teachers refused to teach Nazism and have been dismissed from their jobs.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—You know what I think? I think "I Left My Heart At The Stage Door Canteen" is going to be the most whistled, hummed, crooned, and sung song of the year. Irving Berlin wrote it. Kay Kyser introduced it. It's about the soldier who spent an evening at the Stage Door Canteen in New York and fell in love with one of the hostesses. The Stage Door Canteen is probably America's most successful—certainly America's most famous—pleasure center for men in the armed services. Your uniform is your card of admittance. Everything is free, food, smokes, entertainment.

I FIRST heard this Berlin tune at one of Kay Kyser's rehearsals. It hadn't been played by anybody, except Berlin, before. Harry Babbit sang it. It goes right to your heart. It makes a halo, or maybe a wedding ring, out of a doughnut. That's what the soldier does. He keeps dunking doughnuts until the hostess catches on. He doesn't want to leave and go back to his cutfit. He goes back but his heart isn't with him. He leaves that at the Stage Door Canteen.

It is taking nothing away from this song to point out that it follows one of Irving Berlin's proved success formulaes. . . . It's a formula that he has used before. . . . It's the boy-girl formula, the shy boy who meets a girl and is so taken with her that he tries desperately to prolong his stay in her presence by any means that suggests itself. . . . So, in this case, he founders himself on doughnuts. He keeps eating doughnut after doughnut, until, in the end, she gets wise.

IT WAS this formula that made such a hit out of "I Found A Million Dollar Baby In A Five And Ten Cent Store." . . . Don't you remember? . . . In this song the boy just happened into the store. . . . And suddenly he saw a girl. . . . He couldn't take his eyes off her. She was selling china. So he bought some china. And after that he bought a lot more china. As the song says, "I kept buying chi-i-i-na, until the crowd got wise. . . ."

You can whistle this song, this new song, this one about the doughboy who left his heart at the Stage Door Canteen, the first time you hear it.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"It hasn't been the same around here since the nurse from an army camp arrived."

Timely Editorial

Abolishing CCC.

If congress follows the action of the house appropriations committee, the civilian conservation corps will be abolished July 1. In no other question is contrast more sharply drawn between wartime and peacetime social and economic conditions.

Nearly 10 years ago, in the depths of the depression, CCC was established. It became the best in the whole list of New Deal unemployment reliefs. Thousands of older boys in every great city could not continue their educations, could not get jobs and were "running wild." Taken to rural areas, chiefly forest reserves, they did useful work, got $1 a day and were trained in character and ability for better things in their later lives.

The principal camps would be taken over by the army and put to war use. Essential CCC work under way doubtless would be continued.—Detroit News.

A Farmer's Diary

Bumblebees

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TODAY I saw two boys, just outside a neighboring village, walking carelessly along a gravel highway with broad paddles in their hands. An old stake and rider fence bordered the road on the southern side. The two boys seemed interested in every small hole beneath the lower half-buried rail — even those big enough for a mouse to enter.

Before I caught up with them, I saw one boy on his knees poking with a stick, into every small opening, while the other put an ear close to listen. I supposed they were hunting mice, just for the sport and for the good feeling of coming in contact with the soil in springtime. They might have been hunting chipmunks' burrows, but those broad paddles would have little value.

"Hello!" I said, smiling. "What are you doing with those paddles—if you don't mind telling?"

Both boys stood up. One leaned against the slender rail. They were fine appearing boys, perhaps 12 years old.

"We found one big bumblebees' nest already," exclaimed the taller boy. "It was under that corner rail. When Sam poked his stick into that hole, something made a terrible buzzing and then the biggest bumbler you ever saw came tumbling out . . . honest he was almost as big as a humming bird!"

"Did you kill it?" I inquired.

"You bet we did! It flew right at Sam's face. I hit it with my paddle and Sam stamped it flat . . . why? Is this your field? You don't care if we kill bumblebees, do you?"

"They'll never sting you unless you disturb them," I said mildly. "That big bee you killed was a queen. It had likely found a mouse's old hole under that rail and begun to make its nest. The queen bumblebee builds a sack from pollen and lays five or six eggs. By the middle of the summer the colony becomes quite large. Queen bees don't sting—at any rate I've often held them on my hands to look at them closer."

"But what good are they?" inquired the other lad.

"Do you drink milk?" I asked.

Both looked surprised, and grinned sheepishly. "Why sure—why?"

"Well—cows eat clover. When a farmer cuts a crop of clover hay another clover crop grows up and blooms, and he keeps that for seed. The first crop is no good for seed because there are not enough bumblebees early in the spring to pollinate the blossoms. Bumblebees have longer trunks than honey bees—they're able to get the nectar from clover heads and when they do, they always pay with pollen that the plant must have to produce a seed. When bumblebees do well, clover seed will not be so expensive—more fields will be planted—you boys will have more and better milk to drink!"

"Well, by golly!" ejaculated the older boy. "You've gone and spoiled our fun—but I guess we know more'n we did. Let's drop these paddles here beside the fence, Jake."

BOY, GIRL SHARE TOP HONORS AT ST. PETER'S HIGH

Marjorie Schnug, John Mauer Receive High Citations at Class Night.

trophy for the second highest scholarship and the third and fourth highest awards were received by Miss Schadek and Miss Evelyn Swetlick.

Supplementing the awards presented by the school, the Readers' Digest association presented Miss Schnug with the award annually presented by the association to the highest honor student of the graduating class in senior high schools throughout the country. She received an engraved certificate from the editors and an honorary year's subscription to the Readers' Digest.

The entire class participated in the class prophecy, authored by Miss Schadek, and presented in the form of court trial.

Maurer gave the salutatory and the class roster was read by Robert Cass. Miss Sedlak, who received a senior academic music certificate, played "Hungarian Concert Polka."

Music for the processional was furnished by the school orchestra which played "Pomp and Circumstance," as the graduates took their places on the stage. Miss Schnug gave the valedictory.

The class night ceremonies were the last before graduation day, Thursday, when the graduates will attend their last mass as a class at 8 a. m., and proceed from the church to a banquet breakfast at the school.

Rev. William McKeown of Upper Sandusky, will be the speaker at the graduation exercises Thursday at 8 p. m., in church. Msgr. R. C. Goebel will present the diplomas.

Graduates sharing in the awards at the class night exercises were as follows: Maurer, Eta Signa Phi Latin medal for excellence in fourth year Latin; Kenny, medal for excellence in laboratory science; Miss Schadek, medal for excellence in English; Miss Swetlick, shorthand first honors; Miss Schnug, shorthand second honors.

Miss Schnug and Maurer, scholarship and leadership; Harold Stransky, progress medal; Maurer, perfect attendance at school and compline four years; Genevieve Buzenski, perfect attendance at compline four years; Nicholas Schemine, perfect attendance at choir work;

Superior merit certificates in shorthand were presented to Miss Buzenski, Patricia Jane Dropsey, Rose Palumbo, Miss Schung, Miss Schadek, Mary Sedlak; Gregg shorthand diplomas, Miss Swetlick, Rose Palumbo, Miss Schung, Miss Schadek, Miss Buzenski, and Elizabeth Yanoschek; typewriting awards, Paul Gabor, first; Robert Kurtzman, second; Angeline Spitalieri and Jean Griffith. Bookkeeping awards, Miss Schnug, first; James Kurek, second.

JOHN MAURER

MARGARET SCHADEK

St. Peter's high school will hold commencement exercises Thursday, 8 p. m. in the church for the 39 graduates pictured here. Msgr. R. C. Goebel will present the diplomas after a sermon by the Rev. William McKeon, pastor of St. Peter's church of Upper Sandusky. Awards and honors were presented at the annual Class night ceremonies yesterday when four-year college and university scholarships were presented to the four seniors shown below. Miss Marjorie Schnug and John Maurer received recognition as first honor students and other scholarships went to Margaret Schadek and Evelyn Swetlick.

F. B. I. Sounds Warning Against 'Witch Hunts'

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation doesn't believe in "witch hunts."

In fact, they urge all citizens to avoid the common practice in war time of "mouthing" rumors which have been told them by a friend who heard it from a friend.

"If you know or hear anything which in your good judgment needs attention," said Special Agent Eli J. Rose, "take it to the F.B.I. for their evaluation, instead of investigating it yourself. You may ruin the life of an innocent person or you may spoil an investigation already being conducted by the F. B. I.

"Keep your eyes and ears open and your mouth shut."

Rose said that the spreading of rumors and gossip about someone who speaks with an accent or who is known to eat sauerkraut, is dagerous and decidedly—unfair. Many innocent foreign born persons have had their lives ruined by such "innocent" talk.

"This sort of thing is playing right into the hands of the enemy," Rose added. "They want to divide us, class against class; race against race. There is no weaker house than a house divided."

Rose advocates strict adherance to the new F. B. I. poster which reads:

"The enemy is listening. He wants to know what you know. Keep it to yourself."

OFFERS ADVICE ON SHOE CARE

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — If you're walking more and driving less, the War Production board suggests that you care for your shoes like this:

1. Buy shoes that fit.
2. If you get your shoes wet, put shoe trees in them and dry them away from the radiator or stove. Polish them when dry as a good polish aids in the preservation of the leather.
3. When not in use, put shoe trees in them—if trees are not available "newspapers stuffed tightly into the toes will help."
4. Keep your shoes in good repair. Don't wait until the inner soles are worn through before you have them re-soled. Have the heels replaced before the last is worn crooked.

BUNIONS
Get this quick relief. Lifts shoe pressure, soothes, cushions the sensitive spot. Costs but a trifle.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

MAY BRIDE HONORED BY SORORITY GROUP

Shower of Miscellaneous Gifts Presented to Mrs. Dale Hammett at Beta Pi Mu Meeting Tuesday Night.

THE home of Miss Lucille Meyer, Benedict avenue, was the scene of last evening's meeting of Beta Pi Mu sorority. Business session was conducted by the president, Miss Meyer. The group decided to count and sort the collection of sales tax stamps at the next meeting. The Misses Eleanor Recker and Ettie Mullet will be hostesses.

Luncheon was served at small tables on which a rose corsage for each member had been placed. Miss Betty Jona was associate hostess. Guest was Miss Florence Lutz. During the evening a bride's book was made for Mrs. Dale Hammett, the former Mary Marguerite Bader, whose marriage took place in May. She was honored with a shower of miscellaneous gifts from the group.

The hostesses presented Mrs. Hammett with a large cook book and linen towels. The bridegroom is in the army at Fort Knox, Ky. Mrs. Hammett will reside with her parents at 47 Florence avenue, until he returns.

Shower Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. Martin Scheel, who was Janice Sanborn before her recent marriage, was honored with a miscellaneous shower given last evening by Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority at the home of Mrs. Irvin Lash, 224 Atcheson avenue. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Robert Haag and Miss June Adams. Bridge and pinochle were the diversions.

High score prizes were won by Mrs. Weldon Spurgeon, Mrs. Obed Crownover and Miss Virginia Neal. Second place awards went to Mrs. Robert Addlesperger, Mrs. Alex Schwaner and Miss Grace Lewis. Luncheon was served at a long table centered with a miniature bride and groom. Lighted tapers and individual peppermint favors completed the appointments.

Church Society Meets at Cabin

"Peace Workers Around The World" was the topic discussed by Miss Miriam Dye and Mrs. Marilyn Klippel at the meeting of the Florence Welty Missionary society of the First Lutheran church Monday evening. Hostess was Mrs. John Brant, who entertained at her home on the Olivesburg road.

First Aid Triangle Is Accessory

Left, side sash and turban made of striped bandannas; top right, polka dot triangles used as cravat and head band; below, scarfs tied in collar effect and slack-pouch.

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

THE LATEST accessory news is fashions and first aid! Now that the world of feminine frippery really has to have an excuse for existing, it has invaded the realm of grim reality.

Millions of American women are taking first aid courses and they have learned that the triangular bandage is the most useful single item in first aid. They are told always to carry a triangle with them. But now they can wear one instead.

Glentex has designed a first aid bandanna that can do double duty as a scarf and an emergency bandage. Because it is the exact size of the regulation triangle the bandanna provides an easy way to follow instructions. Its extra large size also makes it an unusually versatile costume accent which can be worn in many different ways.

When and if an emergency arises—you can whip off your bandanna and use it. Since bandages are "not applied directly to wounds," and can be made of any kind of cloth, according to the manuals, this new triangle is both pretty and practical.

Stripes, Polka Dots, Solid Colors.

For fashion's sake it comes in stripes, polka dots and solid colors. In the three above photographs different style bandannas are shown and various ways of wearing them illustrated.

In the first picture a striped scarf is tied in a casual collar effect and a matching one is folded into a smart slack-pouch.

The polka dot version is draped as a cravat-folded head band, and the matching one is used as a scarf collar with a tailored fly-front dress.

The third pair of first aid bandannas is worn with slacks and shirt. One is draped as a hip-slimming side sash to feminize your slacks, and the other is tied into a head-hugging turban with long enough ends to tie in a perky, stand-up bow.

For a ready reference for students in first aid classes, there's an illustrated first aid bandanna with diagrams, adapted from official first aid manuals, showing the correct bandaging steps. The same illustrated triangle is also available in an unbleached muslin version, which makes a perfect practice piece for first aid classes. This would be an excellent thing for men who are taking the courses to have on hand for reference, and would also be a real help to air raid wardens and volunteer civilian defense workers.

Past Presidents Elect Officers For Next Year

Election of officers was held at the June meeting of the Past Presidents club of Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40. The meeting took place in the Memorial building Monday afternoon. Mrs. Alice Oster was named president. Others who will serve during the coming year are Mrs. Alice Hunter, vice president; Mrs. Charlotte Kramer, treasurer; Mrs. Bertha Mae Droz, secretary, and Mrs. Harriett Sherman, press correspondent.

Business session was conducted by Mrs. Mary Johnson. Mrs. Harriett Beck led devotions. Twelve past presidents were in attendance. Report was given on Memorial Day decoration of the graves of deceased sisters. Dinner was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Kramer and Mrs. Droz. Mint cups were given as favors. The group sewed for the Red Cross and made kits for men in the Marine Corps.

Next meeting will be held July 6 with Mrs. Jane Taylor and Mrs. Hunter as hostesses.

Picnic Held for Bexley Guild

Mrs. R. W. Stevens of Park avenue west road was hostess Monday at her cabin for the Bexley guild of the Grace Episcopal church. A picnic lunch was served at 1 p. m. after which Mrs. C. H. Guy, president, took charge of the business meeting.

The Rev. Glenn Lewis gave a report on the work of the council of the Grace Episcopal women and plans were made for the fall program. Announcement was made of the council meeting on July 18 at the church. Mrs. L. D. Wright is in charge of the picnic planned for Aug. 10 at South park. The guests present were Mrs. Harold Donley of New York and Mrs. O. D. Steil.

Hope Club Meets, Holds Election

The Hope club met Monday at the home of Mrs. Charles Garnett of Wooster. Eleven members and two guests, Mrs. Harold Foss and Mrs. W. Franks were present for the election of officers. Mrs. Fred Foss presided over the meeting.

New officers are: Mrs. C. E. Flockencier, president; and Mrs. Walter Roselip, secretary and treasurer. It was decided that the members would buy defense stamps at each meeting during the ensuing year.

Mrs. Flockencier and Mrs. Harry Divelbiss won the prizes for the bingo game. Lunch was served at a long table centered with garden flowers and blue and white place appointments. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Garnett on July 13.

THELMA REED'S PUPILS GIVE PIANO RECITAL

Twenty-one Students Present Program for Parents and Friends at Women's Club Yesterday.

TWENTY-ONE students of Miss Thelma Reed held a piano recital last evening at the Women's Club. "The Star Spangled Banner" opened the program with Richard Ziegler playing the piano, Marjorie Ziegler on violin and Dorothy Ziegler playing flute.

Russell Konves rendered "Country Gardens," an English Morris dance and Brainard's "Starlight Waltz." "Andante from the 6th Symphony" by Tschaikowsky and "Skaters' Waltz" by Waldtenfel were Nancy Wendt's selections. Margaret Johnson played "Londonderry Air," an Irish folk song and "Dorothy" by Seymour Smith.

"Berceuse" by Benjamin Godard and Stephen Heller's "Curious Story" were the pieces chosen by Marilyn Hout. Bettye Glenn played Heller's "Serenade to a French Doll" and "Crossing the Bridge" by Rudolph Friml. For her selections Faye Mott gave "Spinning Song" by Ellmenreich and Offenbach's "Barcacolle."

Next on the program came offerings by Ruth Copeland including, "Rustic Dance" by Howell, Burgmuller's "Ave Maria" and "Tarantella" by Hamer. Margaret Griffith gave Poldini's "Dancing Doll." Glorence Hale and Marilyn Hout played the duet, "Flame Vine" by Mathilde Bilbro. "Argonaise" by Jules Massanet was Dorothy Ziegler's selection.

Following that Marjorie Ziegler offered German's "Torch Dance." Beethoven's "German Dance No. 3" was Janice Ganyard's choice. Another duet, "Amaryllis" by Ghys was played by Faye Nott and Bettye Glenn. Joanne Fay gave Grieg's "Watchman's Song" and "Petite Russian Rhapsody" by Thompson.

Peggy Ehalt gave "Melody" by Dawes and Nevin's "Narcissus." Heller's "Warriors' Song" was Donald Kyle's selection. George Loesch played "Twinkletoes" by Maxwell Eckstein and Tschaikowsky's "Andante form Concerto in B flat." "Military March in D" by Schubert was the duet by Marjorie and Dorothy Ziegler.

Damaris Clark gave Chopin's "Prelude in C minor," Chaminade's "Scarf Dance" and "Lake In Winter" by Torjussen.

For her numbers Sophie Wojcik chose Beethoven's "Contra — Dance No. 3," Palmgren's "May Night" and "Galliwogg's Cake Walk" by Debussy. Marjorie Ullrich played Mozart's "Fantasia in D minor" and "Claire de Lune" by Debussy. The program ended with Ruth Swisher's playing "Turkish Rondo" by Mozart and Sibelius' "Romance."

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

I raised myself to a sitting posture as I spoke, and my father steadied me as I rose from the couch and recovered my shoes.

"Yes," my father said, "I think explanation of that telephone call to Dr. Twitchell is sufficient warrant for delaying dinner, but all of you must have dinner imemdiately afterward. I can send Gus out for it right away to a restaurant I often patronize down here."

"You know my likes and dislikes as well as I do," I told him. "An appetizer or soup, meat or fish or shell food or chicken, one vegetable and a salad, a light dessert and plenty of coffee. You see I really am hungry."

"I'll see to it at once," he said, starting for the door.

"And I'll freshen up a bit while you're gone," I told him. When he had left I put on my shoes, washed my hands, put on a touch of powder and re-arranged my hair.

When my father came back I was waiting in a comfortable chair with another drawn up opposite me.

"Dinner will arrive in less than half an hour," he said. "I hope you do not mind dining by yourself, as I have already dined There are many things I must talk over with Jack and Professor Diswell, and I must do it while they eat, for we must all get back to the hotel, so that you can get to bed and have a good night's sleep."

"I don't feel as if I ever could sleep again in the Lansfield," I said impetuously.

He looked at me intently.

"I suppose that is part of why you telephoned Dr. Twitchwell. You'd better tell me about it now."

Explains Sending Twitchell.

"I'm not going to take up your time with all that happened at Dr. Diswell's cottage," I said. "Jack and Gus can tell you the whole thing better than I can—probably have already—and I simply am not up to it. But while I was there I asked the long distance operator to get me a list of all telephone calls received by Professor Diswell within the last twenty-four hours.

"There was only one," I continued, "and it came from a private unlisted number in Hotel Lansfield."

"So-o?" my father interrupted, with no tinge of surprise in his voice. "Did you get any other information?"

"I asked her what kind of voice it was," I answered, and then repeated the comment of the operator on the "Jah-de-dah, womanish voice" of the man who had called.

"To me that signified but one person," I said, "and a number of suspicious circumstances I have encountered clicked into place as I mentally identified him as one in a key position in the hotel That was the reason I telephoned Dr. Twitchell. I was afraid for your safety."

Milner Constantly Watched.

"I appreciate your solicitude, dear child," he said, then added astoundingly, "but it was entirely unnecessary. I suppose by key position you mean the office of hotel manager."

I stared at him in open-mouthed astonishment.

"You mean?" I gasped.

"That I have known of Mr. Milner's activities for some time; that by pretending to have the greatest confidence in him, and by appealing to him for aid at every opportunity, I not only have made him believe that he has me completely duped, but I also am giving him the traditional rope with which to hang himself.

"His every move is scrutinized. Some of his most trusted subordinates are in my employ. So one of the safest places in the world for any of us is Hotel Lansfield."

"Then," I said bitterly. "I succeeded only in making an idiot of myself."

"Never speak of yourself like that again," my father said sternly. "You did exactly the right thing according to the knowledge you had. But have no further concern. I have that hotel situation well in hand."

A knock at the door punctuated his assertion. When he opened it I heard the voice of one of his men, speaking in low but distinct tones.

"A call on your private telephone from U. H." it said.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN BE THE BEST LEAD

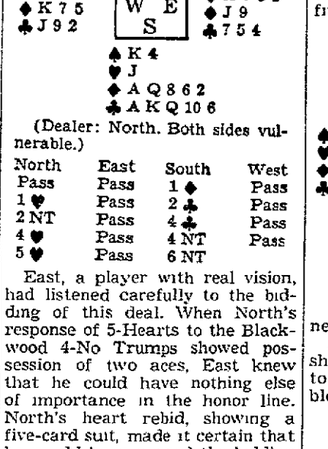
Nobody likes to lead an unbid suit headed by the king, without either the ace or queen accompanying it, especially against a slam bid. In some rare situations, however, the bidding of the opponents cries out so loudly for the suit that a player with courage must open it.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | 1 ♦ | Pass |
| 1 ♥ | Pass | 2 ♣ | Pass |
| 2 NT | Pass | 4 ♣ | Pass |
| 4 ♥ | Pass | 4 NT | Pass |
| 5 ♥ | Pass | 6 NT | |

East, a player with real vision, had listened carefully to the bidding of this deal. When North's response of 5-Hearts to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed possession of two aces, East knew that he could have nothing else of importance in the honor line. North's heart rebid, showing a five-card suit, made it certain that he would have opened the bidding instead of passing on his first turn if he had held the heart Q. Since he did not open it, then West almost surely had that important card.

He therefore led the heart 2, instead of the spade K, which would have been preferred by most ordinary players, reckoning that the spades probably were at least doubly stopped.

The first trick brought forth the heart J, Q and A. North could not see any likelihood of making his contract unless the diamond Q could be finessed successfully, so he tried that. When it failed, the contract was set three with heart tricks. If a spade had been led, the contract would have been easy to make with the loss of one trick in diamonds, North taking two tricks in spades, four in diamonds, five in Clubs and one in hearts.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West leads the heart 8, how should East proceed in his effort to set 4-Spades, which West doubled?

HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 11

An exceptionally interesting and active day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual configurations. All affairs may be expected to move into successful grooves under high tension and well stimulated constructive power. It is a time for using this potential force and productive energy to important purpose. Superiors, employers and elders may lend ready support and large corporations, fraternal, political or diplomatic bodies also assist.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to utilize highly stimulated faculties and forces, which should be directed toward major operations, with innovations, radical processes or improvements, having the hearty sanction of large corporations, political or diplomatic bodies, as well as superiors or employers, all of whom should prove cooperative.

A child born on this day should be excellently endowed with inventive, scientific and constructive ideas of surprising scope and ingenuity. It should enjoy an adventurous, useful and happy life.

CHAPTER II

Cora, who cut in with, "I don't think about whether we can afford it. I know we've got to, and that's that. And you needn't remind me, my dear Ellen, that my husband is a nit-wit, that he's a failure, that he can't make two cents to rub together."

"Oh Cora," Ellen said. "You know I didn't mean . . ."

"I don't care what you meant. It's what you said. So I'll have my say. As long as there's a Kenyon dollar left it's going to keep us where we belong, on the top o' the heap. It's high time Elsa was giving a party. She owes everyone in her crowd."

"Yes, I know. We haven't been able to offer much hospitality for our girls, but people understand, I'm sure."

Cora's voice was sharp and accusing. "They understand because you make such a poor face, like we're paupers. If you'd stop hanging up a sign, 'The Kenyon's are broke; the Kenyon's are church mice,' if you'd get up on your high horse and brazen it through people'd think we're just as well off as ever."

"But what good would it do?" said Ellen weakly. "People will have to know soon. We can't go on . . ."

"Why can't we? We're not stopped yet, are we? We're holding on, I tell you. Maybe you haven't noticed how much Ronald Farnsworth hangs around here. Sometimes he stops in a couple of times a day. Why he don't come here for his health. He comes to see Elsa. He's after Elsa. Once she's Mrs. Ronald Farnsworth, well."

"Cora!" Ellen's heart fluttered so now that her voice was a mere murmur. Cora thought . . . Cora didn't know . . . but she must! "Cora, suppose Ronald—suppose it is Elsa"

A whistle from the front of the house. Then a voice. "Hi! anybody home Hi, Kay. Come out; come out wherever you are. It's Ron."

For a moment Cora stood, her body tensed. Then she turned, walked toward Ellen, stiffly, jerkily, like a robot. She thrust her face close to Ellen's. Her pale, small eyes seemed almost to meet.

"So you got plans too," she rasped. "You that acts like butter won't melt in your mouth. Actin' like a softie and all the time scheming to . . . to . . ." Cora choked with her own ire. Then she recovered, thrust her face closer to the frightened Ellen's. "I'm warning you, Ellen Kenyon, you ain't takin' the best away from me and Asa this time. I'm warning you and that uppity dotter o' yourn to keep your nose outa Elsa's courtship. You spoiled it for us once. There ain't gona be no second time."

In moments of high tension, Cora reverted to the vernacular of her Slater girlhood.

Ellen Kenyon drew back from the lash of Cora's wrath. Her face pale. Her lips trembled.

"Cora," she said weakly. "You can't mean."

"Don't Cora me, and don't you put on any o' your Macon airs." Ellen's father had been a distinguished jurist in his commonwealth. "We're as good as you are even if I was one o' them Slaters down by the lumber yard and Asa Kenyon's a fiddling fool. You let Ronald Farnsworth alone and tell your fine dotter to let him alone too. He comes here to see my Elsa and don't either of you forget it."

"Why . . . of course . . . if you're sure . . . that is . . . I didn't know."

"Well, you know now. And Elsa's givin' a party. There'll be no scrimping. If it takes the last cent we've got, it's gonna be done right. I told Elsa not to go gaddin' over to that Tally's this morning. I had a hunch Ronnie'd be by looking for her. You'd think a girl with a chance like that would stay home and see it don't slip away from her. Mrs. Ronald Farnsworth. That'd be something for this town to swallow!"

From the security of her room Ellen Kenyon looked out of the window that gave upon the garden. A bridle path, now choked with weeds and wire-grass led around this side of the house. Ronald Farnsworth's horse was untethered in the path, cropping grass. Farther along, in the garden Kay and Ronnie were standing by a battered sundial. Ronnie's face was turned toward the window, flushed, eager. Kay was laughing—shaking her head in a negative motion.

Surely, Ellen Kenyon thought, Ronnie's interest in her daughter was more than that of casual friendship. She had noticed for some time Ronnie's growing attentions to Kay. She has a mother's awareness of the pursuit of her young; a mother's intuitive certainty too, that Kay did not return the young man's deeper interest. She turned from the window when Ronnie reached out to touch Kay's shoulder.

The party had come to pass as Cora Kenyon predicted it would and now the phonograph was sobbing a popular torch song when Ronnie, followed none too enthusiastically by Tally and Eunice, rejoined Elsa's party. Couples were walking the dance on the uncertain veranda floor. Loose boards and spreading seams were not conducive to smooth or subtle motion.

Elsa stood at the top of the steps calling gay greeting.

"Wherever have you been?" she wanted to know. "We were about to send out a rescue party."

Tally thought, "She looks better than I've ever seen her look. That light is just right for her pale blond hair. It makes her blue net dress look like mist. Even her eyes are big and bright tonight. Definitely, Elsa is on the make."

Elsa's eyes, of a too-cool grey, were myopic. She kept this defect a secret, even from her mother who might have forced her to do something about it. Glasses! A lot they would do for her. She did not know that need for them was giving her a sharp, peering look as though she were reading too closely into another's life. Elsa's height was another trial to her. The short end of the stag line had a way of busying itself elsewhere when she danced by. But she was beautifully slim—willowy her mother boasted . . . her hands and feet were faultlessly kept and she had cultivated her voice to a musical purr.

Ronnie met Elsa's gay greeting with a wave of the hand. A quick glance had assured him Kay was not among the dancers on the veranda. He went on into the house.

Eunice said, "No use El. He's on the hunt for Kay."

"What makes you think so?" Elsa tried to make the question sound idle.

"He told us so himself, didn't he Tally?"

"I'll say he did," Tally grumbled. "He practically ran us up that path from the end of the garden; he was in such a dither."

"Yes?" Elsa's eyes narrowed into that pinched expression which was becoming more and more obvious as their weakness increased. "Sorry. Kay seems to have gone other places. I've been looking everywhere for her . . . mother wanted her to help with more salad."

"What's a salad more or less, when there's big game to be had?" Eunice said.

Tally said, "But big! She's probably waiting in the moonlight for the knight errant to come out and hold her hand."

At this moment Kay appeared in the path, the damage she had done to her dress plainly visible in the dim light from the veranda.

"My word," Tally called. "You have been having yourself a time my dear. Did you manage to fight him off?"

"Oh yes indeed," Kay said brightly, ignoring the inenundo. "I buried him. It was great fun!"

"How about a dance Kay?" a roly-poly man said leaning perilously against a rickety railing.

"Yes, Kay, how's about it? You promised me a dance an hour ago."

"Pardon me gentlemen, this dance is mine." Ronnie Farnsworth ran down the steps, pulled Kay's arm under his own and drew her possessively into the light. Her hair, which had been a wind-blown bob was now a cluster of curls that were dark red or russet brown according to the light upon them. She was a smallish girl, daintily curved and vital as one could judge from the underlying rose of her cheeks, her generous red lips and her merry eyes. There was a warmth about her, here was a human being who loved living.

LIFE CHEAP IN GERMANY, HEAVY FINES FREQUENT

Courts Issue Death Sentences For Lengthy List of Offenses.

(Editor's Note: Punishments handed out by German courts are described by Louis P. Lochner, chief of the former Berlin bureau of the Associated Press and Wide World, in this seventh of a daily series for The News-Journal since his return after five months' internment in Germany.)

By LOUIS LOCHNER

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Life is as cheap in interior Germany as it is at the front.

Death sentences are imposed by Nazi judges as easily as an American police court magistrate levies fines for minor offenses. Severe penitentiary sentences and high monetary punishments were the order of the day as we left the Reich May 12.

No sooner had the Nazi regime issued an appeal to civilians in late December to give up their furs and woolens for the soldiers fighting in wintry Russia, than Hitler issued a decree imposing the death penalty on anybody found guilty of stealing these offerings.

By January 12 one man, Karl Sachs of Fulia, had been condemned to death and executed at Kassel for pilfering furs.

On February 15 we learned of the execution of Johann Walter, a 24-year-old Vienna clothes thief. Two persons who aided him were sentenced to 15 and 12 years hard labor respectively.

The next day the press announced the execution of seven Germans who committed thefts during blackouts.

There followed an announcement to the effect that two Berlin captains of industry had been yanked into a concentration camp because they assigned several laborers in their munitions plants to do chores for them in their private homes. There was also published the story of a Frankfurt merchant who had 18,000 reichsmarks stolen from his safe. He was fined 18,000 marks and sentenced to three months in jail for hoarding money!

During March and April the Frankfurter Zeitung, which the Bad Nauheim internees were permitted to read, repeatedly published stories of heavy fines imposed for profiteering — stories obviously intended as a warning.

Johannes Zulauf was found guilty in a Kassel court of killing four pigs and one calf in violation of regulations. He was sentenced to three years. Five citizens of Koblenz were given sentences varying from six to two months and heavy money fines for killing one pig surreptitiously.

The Frankfurter Zeitung of April 9 and 10 devoted two columns to detailed stories of three, two and one year penitentiary sentences imposed on war profiteers.

The list of offenses punishable by death was extended in two important directions during the middle of April.

Heads of firms working on war contracts which made false returns regarding the number of laborers available in their plants, or regarding the raw materials in stock or ordered for fulfilling any assigned contract, were warned that death or the penitentiary is in store for them.

They were given a short respite during which they might confess past sins, in which case these transgressions would not be charged up against them.

From explanatory articles it appeared that some firms, having learned from experience that the priorities boards will never grant them what they asked in the way of raw materials, arbitrarily demanded much more than they needed, in expectation of being cut down to actual needs anyway.

At times, however, through some bureaucratic error the full quantity asked for was awarded, with the result that the excess was used by the manufacturer to turn out highly priced civilian goods at great profit to himself.

Industrialists also were in the habit of asking for more men from the labor exchanges than their actual wartime needs justified.

The death decree is to put an end to such practices.

Recluse Leaves $15,000 In Old Trunk In Cellar

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—For 46 years John Cornelius Sullivan lived alone in a partitioned corner of the basement of a four family apartment in a good residential section.

He had been regarded as a poor man who occasionally doled out pennies to neighborhood children. He cooked his own slim meals over a gas burner in his basement corner. He died at the age of 82.

Searchers discovered an old trunk in his cubbyhole. Inside they found $15,000 in old-style large-size bills, $600 in gold certificates, a bank book showing deposits of $3,200, and a receipt for a safety deposit box.

In the box were found deeds to the apartment building in which he lived and to another house which was rented.

SEIZED AFTER THEFT

CANTON, O.—(AP)—Two men booked as Walter H. Markle, 36, and Samuel Shortino, 23, admitted they were fugitives from Ohio's Lebanon prison farm, Detective Capt. Norman Van Almen reported. The pair was seized after a purse theft.

Jeeps, 'Minute Maids' Ride In City Friday

Clad in the 1942 version of the uniform worn by the "Minute Maids" as shown above, 23 Mansfield "Minute Maids" will sell war savings bonds and stamps as part of the city's "Jeep Day" celebration Friday. Every purchaser will receive a "Jeep Club" button and every bond buyer will receive a ride in a jeep. The "Minute Maids" will be Mrs. Tom Ford, Mrs. Oliver Henkel, Mrs. Charles Spreng, Mrs. Morris Bradley, Mrs. Art Smith, Mrs. John B. Hattery, Mrs. W. W. Grant, Mrs. Gilbert Dobson, Mrs. Thornton Moore, and the Misses Polly Morrissey, Joan Marquis, Marilou Sowash, Dorothy Bergman, Peggy Cayford, Kay Steil, Betty Austin, Gretchen Edwards, Mariann Stander, Margaret Walter, Joan Locke, Anna Jane Lloyd, Lillian Art, and Patty Palmer.

Urges City to Fly Flags for 'Jeep Day' Activities Friday

ly known as Jeeps. The cars in the procession here will be standard-design Jeeps built by Willys-Overland Motors of Toledo.

Lined up at the square at the time of the ceremony will be more than a score of "Minute Maids"Mansfield girls who will serve as war bond and stamp salesladies for the rest of the day. One or two of the girls will accompany each Jeep going to a sales location — at Moorhead showrooms, the Richland Bank, Third and Main, and Third and Walnut.

The girls also will accompany the mobile Jeeps which will tour the city through the afternoon. Among plants and locations to be visited are the Westinghouse, Ohio Brass ,Tappan and Empire plants, the A & P Super Market, the Gulf station at 204 Lexington avenue, Shaw's on Marion avenue, and other points in various parts of the city.

Part of the fleet will remain in Mansfield for continued bond sale Friday evening, and others will go to Crestline to participate in a parade on that evening.

Everyone who buys a bond Friday will be taken for a ride in one of the Jeeps, and all those who buy either a bond or stamps will receive a "Jeep Club" button. Bolin pointed out the stamp booklets may be turned in for bonds Friday, and these too will entitle purchasers to a ride in a Jeep.

If a child receives a ticket for a ride and is not accompanied by his parents, a hostess will go along when the youngster is taken for a spin in the Jeep. In addition, there are safety belts to protect passengers. The route for the ride will take in some hilly and bumpy sections of streets.

The slogan announced for the day is "Buy a Bond and Ride a Jeep." Richland county's war bond quota for June is $387,600—an increase of 33⅓ per cent over May, and the Jeep Day committee points out that the figure for June would buy 408 Jeeps for Uncle Sam's Army. They cost approximately $950 each to build.

Mansfielders See Mexicans Parade On Day Of War Order

Ask Assistant Postmaster W. T. Houston, just home from a vacation trip to Mexico, about his most exciting experience south of the border and he'll likely tell you—"Being there the day war was declared on the Axis by President Camacho——."

Houston, along with six other Mansfielders in an escorted party of 22, witnessed the public demonstration that folowed President Comacho's proclamation in Mexico City and not only that, but "shot" moving pictures of most of the procession to show their friends. That is, his son, William, jr., and his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Erling Smedal, took the pictures.

"A policeman who could speak English seemed to take a liking to my son and the Smedals," Houston said, "and told them he would take them to the belfry although ordinarily such a thing was not permitted."

"The only thing that worries us now," the postal official continued, "is whether or not the Mexican censors will delete the parade scenes. Under a new law that recently went into effect all films taken in Mexico must be left there for development and inspection by the board of censors."

"The Mexican people seemed to be in favor of the president's proclamation," Houston said. They thronged the streets by the thousands to see Comacho and the parade."

Another demonstration—a bullfight—was also witnessed by the party but Houston said one bullfight was all he "could take." The Mexican people don't seem to be aware of the cruelty involved, the Mansfielder said, but merely concerned with the skill of the matador.

The luxuriant flowers blooming throughout Mexico, particularly gardenias and orchids, were among the other things that impressed the Mansfielders. "The native girls threw a wreath about our necks when our party arrived at the hotel," Houston said, "and the next morning they were on hand with large boxes of flowers that sold for about 40 cents in American money."

Meals were economical too, Houston said, for two and one-half pesos, or the equivalent of 50 cents, would buy a four-course dinner.

The Mansfield party that included the assistant postmaster, his wife and son, Dr. and Mrs. Smedal, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mathes, visited Guadaloupe, Taxco, Cuernavoca and Cordoba during their two-week trip.

DANCE PUPILS PICNIC TODAY AS AFTER-SHOW CELEBRATION

The 125 pupils of the Marguerite Speas dancing studio had a picnic at North Lake park today as a grand finale to their successful presentation Monday night of "One Night of Rhythm."

The program, given before an audience of 1,250 which jammed the Senior high school auditorium, represented the dancing studio's sixth annual revue. It was sponsored by the Mansfield Co-Operative and Cooperates clubs, the proceeds to be turned over to the Richland Victory Civic committee for its service men's entertainment fund.

Following up the picnic this afternoon, Miss Speas will be hostess at a studio party tonight for members of the two sponsoring clubs. A report on ticket sales will be made at that time.

In "One Night of Rhythm," boys and girls from four to 16 performed toe and tap dances, humorous novelty acts, and ballet and acrobatic dances.

One of the most popular acts with the audience was entitled "The Three Little Kittens" in which Kay Alexander, Bertha Workman and Marilyn Duff, dressed as cats presented an acrobatic dance.

In the military finale, which climaxed the show Gene Calver and Robert Schrack danced on two big drums as 20 other dancers, dressed in red, white and blue, performed on a runway and stairs, also decorated in patriotic colors.

Some of the outstanding solo performances were given by Sharon Noll of Crestline, who did a tap dance on a staircase; Anita King who presented a toe tap and acrobatic hurdle dance; and Clark Yerigan doing a Russian tap dance.

MARGUERITE SPEAS

Costumes for the revue were designed by Mrs. H. P. Speas and piano accompaniment for the dancers was played by Mrs. Raymond Mowry and Mrs. E. Scott.

The Mansfield All-Girl orchestra, under the direction of Will Krutz, played before the show and during intermission.

Here's how I feel about it!

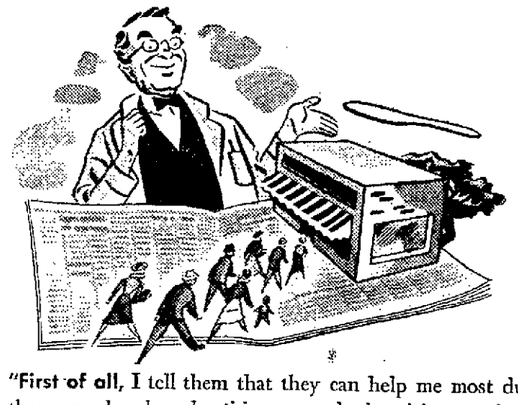
"Like all retailers, I get lots of calls from manufacturers' salesmen who want to know how business is . . . and what they can do to make it better. When they ask me what kind of support I need in times like these, I go to town . . . "



1. "First of all, I tell them that they can help me most during these war days by advertising . . . and advertising consistently and regularly, not in fits and starts. And the advertising ought to reach all my customers and prospects. This, of course, means newspaper advertising."

2. "Next, I remind them that what I need is advertising that goes to work right here in this town, and in my own neighborhood . . . advertising that is keyed to local conditions, and tells people that they can buy the product at my store. You can't beat the home-town newspaper for that kind of advertising."

3. "I tell them, too, that I like to tie in my ads with the manufacturer's. This helps us both a lot . . . not only for special sales, but for normal, day-by-day selling. Of course there's only one place where we can work together this way . . . and that's the local paper."

4. "Finally, after giving my other reasons for wanting more newspaper advertising support from manufacturers, I clinch it all by pointing out that I use newspapers successfully for my own advertising . . . and what works so well for me is found to work just as well for them."

Smart man, this retailer. He knows that he and the manufacturer are in business together to sell goods to people. And he knows that today especially, with the nation at war, manufacturers can produce more sales for their retailers . . . and themselves . . . by advertising in local newspapers.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Britain's unprecedented big-scale bombings of Hitler's domains in western Europe undoubtedly are fulfilling many of the requirements that would be expected of the second land-front for which a lot of people in the Allied countries have been clamoring as an immediate aid to Russia.

But this doesn't mean the land offensive should be dispensed with. The second front will come in due course.

Still, this terrific aerial bombardment represents one of the most important developments of the war and lends weight to the startling prediction by Britain's air chief marshal, A. T. Harris, that "some people argue that heavy bombing will not win wars. To them I answer that it hasn't been tried yet. When it is, Germany will be the experiment and Japan will be the confirmation."

This is a rapidly changing war, in which science is producing quick shifts. The advance in the striking-power of the air arms is one of the most remarkable.

We can't afford to base judgment on past air performances. For instance, at the outset of the war there were those in high positions who pooh-poohed the idea that warships, especially battleships, were vulnerable to air attack. For a fine demonstration of what air power can do, check our big victory at Midway.

One argument for a second front in western Europe is that the Nazi army must be knocked out. That probably is true, but there's more than one way of skinning a cat. There could be no more effective method of hamstringing an army than to cut it off from all military supplies, say through the destruction of war industries by bombing on the scale now being carried out by the Royal Air Force.

However, there need be no worry for fear the Allies will try to beat Europe's arch-devil by bombs alone. That eagerly awaited new land-front will materialize, but pending its advent those who are advocating it can rest easy in the assurance that the all-out bombing raids certainly in at least some cases are causing as much and probably more damage than a sizable land army could effect—and, the air fleets are doing it in far less time and with immeasurably less expenditure in life, energy, materiel and money.

This Was The Week In Which: Cute Olivia DeHavilland posed for a picture in the 18 club wearing a glass swizzle-stick for a "mustache." . . . George Raft came to town but didn't visit the Stork, El Morocco, Monte Carlo, or any of the places he loves—because his girl, Betty Grable, wasn't here to go with him. . . . Clifford Fischer's third vaudeville show, "Top Notchers," outdrew the hit "Priorities" at the box office—with the Hartmans and Gracie Fields moved from the first half to next-to-closing so Lee Shubert wouldn't miss their performances. . . . Martha Raye, engaged to the Greek dancer Nick Condos, sent out to a Greek restaurant for some Greek pastry as a treat for the Greek waiters at the Stork club. . . . Bertha Belmore, who stops the show in "By Jupiter," walked into Sardi's with Margot Grahame after the opening—and a whole section of table-sitters arose and applauded and cheered her!

A Stone's Throw from Broadway: The conventional "Excuse me while I go powder my nose" was amended to "Pardon me while I freshen up my stockings" the other evening when Gertrude Niesen appeared at El Morocco wearing those new cosmetic stockings that come in a jar. You can't get a run in them, of course, but somebody spilled a little champagne on one of Gertie's legs and her psuedo stockings streaked; so she had to repair to the femme's fainting room to apply a fresh coat of color.

At the reopening of Fefe's Monte Carlo Beach, a cross-section of the town's celebrities created a vast hub-hub, but Lady Mendl sat quietly in the adjoining Casino and played gin rummy with Baron Raeder and her toy pomeranian as if Moss Hart, William Rhinelander Stewart, Zorina, Tilly Losch, James J. Farley and Sylvia Fairbanks were not exuding glitter just a few feet away.

Fables from the Fifties: There are a lot of things around Broadway these nights to remind you of Texas Guinan. The aforementioned Raft is one, of course, because he was a kid who worked for her in one of her gaudy boites and wore loud suits and did the Charleston; and then there is another one, Walter O'Keefe, who is back after a long absence.

Walter, who is doubling between La Martinique and "Topnotchers," got his first New York job through Texas, and she always liked to tell the story of how he got that first job—and I imagine he does, too.

Walter had arrived in New York from Fort Wayne, Ind., determined to launch a career in show business. He had often heard of Texas Guinan — and he had always thought that anyone named Texas was a man.

So he sent a wire to Mr. Texas Guinan, telling "him" that he was a comedian and available for hiring.

Walter sat for hours in his hotel room, waiting for a call from Mr. Guinan. He didn't know that for Texas the day began at midnight, so when 1 a. m. had arrived and the phone bell hadn't even tinkled, he went to bed, tired and discouraged.

At 7 the next morning the telephone did ring, and a woman's voice said: "This is Texas Guinan. I got your wire. Come up tonight—and if you can be that funny on a nightclub floor, I'll hire you."

That was in 1925, I think, and Walter O'Keefe worked for Tex until the Guinan club closed in New York, and then he worked for her in Florida. She was always proud of his success on the radio, and never wearied of telling how he had first auditioned for her—via Western Union.

400 WOMEN SIT DOWN ON JOBS IN PAY DISPUTE

Ignore Request of Union Head at Goodyear as They Continue Strike.

(By International News Service)

AKRON—Failing to heed demands of Sherman H. Dalrymple, president of the CIO-United Rubber Workers union, that they return to work immediately, 400 women employes of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company today continued their combination sit-down-walkout strike.

"We would rather quit our jobs right now than work under these conditions," spokeswomen for the strikers told C. V. Wheeler, Goodyear local president of the URW.

The strike flared yesterday in protest to a company plan to change women workers from a daily to a piece-rate pay basis.

The change would increase production about 10 per cent, but would give the women only a six and one-half per cent wage increase, Wheeler said.

A dozen women stopped work and sat down beside their jobs as the strike got under way and as each succeeding shift entered the plant they proceeded to their work tables but refused to start work. The women have been busy in three departments turning out fabric boats, life rafts and life vests for use in war planes.

The management was reported to have said it would not enter into negotiations with the union until the women went back to their jobs.

Meanwhile, both union and company representatives awaited arrival of Paul W. Fuller, labor department conciliator for Akron.

Union representatives pointed out that while the strike is in violation of the union's bylaws and its contract with the company, no disciplinary action will be taken until it is determined what action the company will take against supervisors of the affected departments for what Wheeler said was "an antagonistic attitude."

SEIZE SENDERS

FBI Agents Get 13 Powerful Enemy Radio Stations.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— A spokesman for the FBI disclosed today that 13 enemy-controlled radio stations—capable of sending messages to Berlin or Tokyo—have been seized throughout the United States since Dec. 7.

Although the spokesman did not reveal the locations of the units, it was believed they were spotted along America's three coastlines and originally designed to communicate with Axis capitals as well as submarines.

Acting in concert with the federal communications commission, FBI agents closed one of the last remaining channels through which details of American ship movements and armaments production could be made known to the enemy.

BRIEF ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH

Gerald B. Hawkins, Employe of Dairy, Dies at Hospital.

ASHLAND — District supervisor of the Isaly Dairy company, Gerald B. Hawkins, 31, Elyria, died last night at Samaritan hospital of a throat infection. He had been ill since last Friday.

He was born in Akron, May 9, 1911. He was district supervisor of the Isaly Dairy company for the past 10 years and had lived in Elyria for the past year. He was a member of the Congregational church.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Hawkins; two children, Gerald and Lynn, at home; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Hawkins, of Akron.

The body was removed to the Danbow-Baer funeral home, pending funeral arrangements.

SEES HALT IN BUS PRODUCTION

Eastman Declares Plan For Allocation of Street Cars Also Studied.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Production of buses probably will cease soon, according to Joseph B. Eastman, director of the office of defense transportation.

In an extemporaneous talk last night with transportation representatives from Akron, Youngstown, Warren, Lorain and Cleveland, Eastman mentioned the stoppage in manufacture of private automobile as bearing upon the local transportation problem, adding:

"I am afraid there will be no more construction of buses except those for which orders have been placed, and inventories have been established."

Eastman said officials were studying the problems of allocating surplus street cars and buses to places where they were war workers. Local transportation problems, however, must be solved locally, he said.

Of the tire situation, Eastman said: "I think the government ought to have the power to requisition, but I think it should be approached with a great deal of care.

"The rubber situation is far more of a question than the mere stopping of vehicular transportation. Our whole economy and the distribution of our population has been geared to these highway automotive vehicles. The major portion of the transportation service they perform comes under the classification of necessary transportation."

WEST AGREES TO SETTLEMENT

Accord Reached Out of Court In $687,000 Suit for Fees.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Charles West, former 17th district Ohio congressman and one-time undersecretary of interior, has agreed to an out-of-court settlement of his $687,000 suit against the Empire Ordnance corporation, Lincoln Epworth, West's attorney, announced yesterday.

West, in a complaint filed in federal court late in 1941, said the firm engaged him as a business consultant and agreed to pay him one per cent of the gross amount of its sales. Between November, 1940, and May, 1941, West claimed, the corporation's sales amounted to $70,000,000, while he received only $13,000.

"In view of the conditions prevailing since Pearl Harbor, it was thought best to settle the matter without delay," Epworth asserted.

RATE BOOSTED

State Permits Higher Depreciation Allowance For Steel Firms.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The state taxation department today recognized the Ohio steel industry's all-out war production by increasing the annual depreciation allowance for steel plant machinery and equipment.

Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt notified the industry that the depreciation rate for auditing 1942 tax returns would be 7 per cent and that for last year's returns 6 per cent instead of the former rate of 5 per cent. The resulting reduction in tax valuation of machinery and equipment was not estimated.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION KEEPS MAN LIVING FOR FIVE MONTHS

(By Associated Press)

JAY, Okla. — Artificial respiration applied by friends who have labored unceasingly for five months—night and day—has kept the spark of life burning in Mason Williams, 49-year-old school teacher.

To stop pumping breath into his wasted body would mean a strangling, suffocating death.

Dr. Frank Veroni, Jay physician, said Williams was suffering from a disease causing paralysis of the muscles used in breathing and swallowing.

When Williams began to lose control of his respiratory system, artificial respiration was applied. Some of his friends volunteered to help and for five months they have kept at it, working in relays.

Dr. Veroni said Williams' ability to breathe has been impaired about 75 per cent. Without artificial respiration he cannot speak or swallow.

"We've been blessed with wonderful friends," said Mrs. Williams, who is worn and haggard after the long ordeal but still hopeful that a way may be found to save her husband.

Recently, she said, he was taken to an Oklahoma city hospital and placed in an iron lung but immediately began to choke and had to be removed.

His weight has dropped from 150 to 87 pounds and doctors hold out no hope for his recovery.

But his friends say they'll keep on pumping until death ends their labors.

PICKS PANCOAST

Bricker Names Clevelander as Adjutant General.

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Gov. John W. Bricker today appointed Brig. Gen. Donald F. Pancoast of Cleveland, commander of Ohio state guard and naval militia, as acting adjutant general to succeed Lt. Col. Whittier S. Bird.

Bird obtained a leave of absence April 30 to rejoin the 37th (Ohio) division as adjutant.

Bricker said that Pancoast, who is chief engineer of the Ohio Planning survey, will assume his new position at once. As a member of the governor's cabinet, he will become a member of the State Defense council. His salary will be $6,500 a year.

U. S., BRITISH COOPERATE ON FOOD, WEAPONS

Form Joint Agencies to Plan Co-ordination of Output, Standardization.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A saving of 25 per cent in ocean shipping space needed for the United Nations war effort may result from the establishment of the British-American war production board, authoritative sources estimated today.

Further economies in scare cargo space may be achieved through the creation of the Anglo-American food board.

The two new agencies, designed to combine war and food production efforts of the two countries, were announced yesterday by President Roosevelt on behalf of himself and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Donald M. Nelson, war production board director, and Oliver Lyttleton, British minister of production, will form the production board. The two members of the food board will be Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and R. H. Brand, chief of the British food mission here.

An authorized spokesman said these three objectives were the immediate goals of the new setup:

1. Saving of shipping space through allocation of production in such a way that suplies could be moved from the producing area closest to the war theater for which they are intended. In some cases—such as India—machine tools and equipment might be moved in to set up local manufacturing units.

2. Standardization as far as possible of weapons used by the United Nations so that ammunition and parts would be interchangeable.

3. Consideration of the total United States-British production capacity as one vast industrial empire in order to gain a maximum of efficiency from existing machinery.

Only the two countries were included in the plan because other United Nations powers are not producing war materials sufficient to meet even their own demands, and thus have no shipping problem. Mr. Roosevelt made clear however, that Canada would participate in any joint action through her membership on the British supply council.

One possible development from the joint production effort, officials said, might be concentration of bomber production in the United States while Britain stepped up production of fighter planes. Bombers can be flown to England; smaller planes must go in ships.

Army Drops Plan To Rehabilitate Physically Unfit

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(INS)—The army has dropped its plan to rehabilitate men rejected for service because of physical disabilities, it was revealed today at the American Medical association annual convention.

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, explained to the delegates that the program was abandoned after preliminary tests in Maryland and Virginia proved futile.

He said the tests did not justify the continuance of the program and asserted that lack of hospital space and doctors because of wartime pressure combined with the lowering of army standards which detoured 20 per cent of those formerly rejected back into 1-A and 1-B classifications were the deciding factors.

General Hershey said he would ask the war manpower board or some other federal agency to undertake the job as neither the army nor selective service wanted it.

TAKES TO PARACHUTE

DAYTON, O.—(AP)—When Major R. D. Denson's fighter plane developed trouble in the air, he jumped out with a parachute and was injured landing. The plane crashed on a farm.

by REX HESS

Speaking of records on Mansfield golf courses, the boys at Possum Run are still gasping over what is not only the longest drive ever recorded on the course, but which may well be the longest drive in the history of the Royal and Ancient Scottish pastime.

Modest Mike Liggett propelled the pulsating pellet on its prodigious ride, but even Modest Mike will admit that he had some help in sending the little white plaything to its ultimate destination.

How much help, Mike will never know. And what the destination Mike will never know either.

Seems Mike was playing with Tony Lake and Cliff Faust when he comes up to the 18th tee at Possum.

Now Mike is a lad who is apt to clout the onion for a country mile at any time, but the direction is apt to be just a wee bit off, if you get what I mean. A wild man at tee time is Michael.

And a wild man was he on this 18th tee on the day in question.

Now Mike wound up with might and main,
Never shall he see that ball again.

Ka-whammy! Maybe it was a pull, maybe it was a hook, maybe a little of both. But high, wide and handsome she rode, straight for the road.

Boom! She bounced on the Main street road, and——. Plop! She dropped in a coal truck wending its way in the direction of Mansfield—a little white thing in a black background, taking a ride such as no golf ball ever took before.

* * *

Whether that ball is now in a Mansfield cellar or coal yard, or whether it travelled on for miles and miles to the north or east or west nobody knows.

"Just for a gag," says Mike, "I would like to know where that drive wound up."

But there's no doubt in the minds of the Possum Run golfers that it was the longest drive on or off the record.

* * *

Was it a pull? Was it a hook? "Neither," says Mike. "The last time I saw that drive it had a definite fade." Yes, the road at the top of the hill, as the truck went out of sight, does have a bit of a turn to the right.

JUST GOT TOGETHER AND FORMED TEAM

MADISONVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — When Madisonville high school tied for second place recently in the regional track meet, no one was any more astonished than Coach Oral Caywood. He didn't even know the school had a track team until the day of the meet.

"A bunch of us boys have decided to go over to the regional meet today," one of them told Caywood. "We're going to hitchhike."

Caywood, who coaches other athletic teams but not track, decided to go along and took the boys in his car. They tied for second place.

SIGNS WITH BIRDS

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Jack McLain, Ohio State university outfielder and pitcher, today was signed to a Columbus Red Bird contract. He likely will be optioned to a club of lower classification by the Birds.

Even Last Placers Get Inverness Money.

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—The eighth annual Inverness four-ball matches—the golf pro's paradise—gets under way Thursday with 16 of the country's top-notch club-swingers splitting up $7,650 for four days of play.

* * *

Each of the entrants is guaranteed a share of the big purse. Even the last placers will get $43.75 per day, and the Inverness club also pays the hotel and board bills, along with other incidentals, so it's all profit for the pros.

The 16 talented troupers are paired into eight teams, with each twosome meeting every other over the 18-hole best ball route. Each match goes the full 18 holes, and the winning twosome is given a "plus" equal to the number of holes it is ahead, while the losing pair gets a corresponding "minus."

The team with the greater "plus" takes the heavy end of the purse, $1,650 in cash and $500 in war bonds. The second team gets $1,000 in cash and $300 in bonds, and the third $750 in cash and $200 in bonds. For the remaining places, $100 less is given for each spot, with the eighth-placers getting $300 in cash and $50 in war bonds. In addition, the team scoring the most birdies over the route gets $250 in bonds, as does the pair turning in the best score for a single round.

Last year the eight pairs ripped the historic Inverness layout apart with 317 birdies, six eagles and a hole in one as those two Texans, Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, copped the No. 1 prize. They are back for another try.

* * *

Arrayed against them are such teams as Horton Smith and Chick Harbert, Jimmy Hines and Herman Barron, Henry Picard and Sam Byrd, Herman Keiser and Chandler Harper, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison and Denny Shute, Byron Nelson and Jimmy Thomson, and Lloyd Mangrum and Lawson Little.

Trojans Liked In Big Meet

Have 16 Athletes in 26 Events at Lincoln.

LINCOLN, Neb. — (INS) — The 21st national collegiate games shaped up today as mostly an individual affair for the star-studded cast with Southern California expected to run into little opposition for its eighth straight N. C. A. A. crown.

From the hero-worship excitement around one wouldn't think that 200 athletes and 49 schools are entered in the meet to be held Friday and Saturday nights on the University of Nebraska's running track.

Instead, attention was focused on the nine defending champions and Coach Dean Cromwell's heavily favored Trojan aggregation which has 16 men entered in a total of 26 assignments.

* * *

Here and there one could hear suggestions that Ohio State, having captured the Big Ten outdoor title last month with the second largest score in conference history, might supply a real threat to the Californians.

The Buckeyes have an 11-man squad entered to carry some 18 or 19 assignments.

But the talk is mostly Trojan and of the defending champions who include Barney Ewell, Penn State, both dashes; Hubert Kerns, Southern California, 440; Campbell Kane, Indiana, 880; Leslie MacMitchell, New York university, mile; Bob Wright, Ohio State, both hurdles; Al Blozis, Georgetown, shot put, and Harold Hunt, Nebraska, pole vault.

SALES BOOK WINS

SHELBY—The Shelby Salesbook Co. defeated the high school team, 6 to 1, Tuesday night in a Shelby Softball League game.

Aces Run In Adams Family

LEE ADAMS

Lee Adams, Mansfield high school graduate of last week, yesterday canned what Irish McGee, Possum Run operator, says is the first hole-in-one ever scored on No. 10 green at Possum. Using a brassie on the 185-yard hole, Adams sent a high shot straight for the pin. It fell short of the green, bounced on, bounced again, and rolled into the cup. He was playing with Bob Henry and his younger brother, Arnold Adams. Last summer his mother, Florence Adams, scored the only hole-in-one of the season at Possum Run on No. 2.

Harridge and Dykes Fight It Out on Stalling Charge

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—William Harridge, president of the American league, and Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, were in opposite corners today for a fight that may supply more action than the circuit's pennant chase.

Harridge levied a fine of $250 against Dykes and publicly rebuked him yesterday for stalling tactics in the second game of a double-header at Boston Sunday.

Dykes countered by terming the league executive's action "unfair" and promised to "have something to say before this thing is over."

The White Sox pilot, who talked himself into the trouble with Umpires Eddie Rommell, Bill McGowan and Cal Hubbard, will request an audience with Harridge immediately upon his return to Chicago June 16. Meantime, he must pay the fine as he was given only five days in which to meet the assessment.

In fining Dykes, Harridge indulged in vitriolic comment uncommon with him. He charged the White Sox pilot with deliberate stalling to prevent completion of the contest before the 6:30 Sunday deadline and said:

"In your conduct you overlooked your duty to the Boston and Chicago fans, to say nothing of the public and baseball."

* * *

Harridge simultaneously overruled a protest Dykes had made on the basis that the game had gone beyond the legal limit and that the umpires, without authority, had ordered Jake Wade into the game as a relief hurler when Dykes had intended Pete Appleton to be the pitcher.

Loss Streaks Come to End

Saints and Toledo Mud Hens Finally Win.

(By Associated Press)

It was a night for stopping long-sustained losing streaks in the American Association last night.

St. Paul's Saints dropped their 15th straight contest, 1-0, in the first of a double bill with Louisville, and then snapped out of it to take the nightcap at St. Paul 4-2.

At Milwaukee, the Toledo Mud Hens ran their straight losses to 11 in a 3-0 curtain raiser, than staged an uprising to get back in the win column, 13-1.

Minneapolis further improved its third place spot behind Milwaukee by taking two seven-inning games from Indianapolis, 3-0 and 7-4.

League-leading Kansas City was idle at home, a scheduled doubleheader with Columbus being postponed.

Sprys Triples For Charleston

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—Canton and Erie battled to a 6 to 6 tie in a Mid-Atlantic League game called in the 11th inning last night because of the baseball curfew law.

A three-run rally by Erie tied the count in the sixth. Canton used two pitchers, the Sailors three.

* * *

Herby Farrell, Erie pitcher, and Ed Heinrich hit homers inside the park for the Sailors, Farrell's coming with one on.

* * *

Outfielder George Sprys hit a triple with one aboard in the ninth to give Charleston a 4 to 3 win over Zanesville, while Dayton and Springfield split a doubleheader, the Cardinals taking the opener 2 to 0 and Dayton the nightcap 5 to 4.

HELPFUL GEORGE

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Stan Spence of Washington, one of the early season American league batting stars, says he hits better when George Case, fleet base-runner and the Senators' lead-off man, is on base. With George on base the pitcher can't concentrate on me and I get hits more often.

HE'LL HELP DAD

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—John Kobs, Michigan State baseball coach, will have some family aid next year, John, jr., pitched for the Spartan freshman this season.

Glamor Takes On New Whirl

Gloria Nord . . . easy on skates and on the eyes.

(Wide World Features)

NEW YORK—Glamorous Gloria they call her, the golden-haired ballerina on wheels—Sonja Henie without ice.

She's the cutie who is making roller-skating click at the box office.

Gloria Nord—her real name is Nordskog—is 19 and almost a novice, comparatively, at roller-skating. She won only one amateur tournament, the 1941 Southern California waltz championship, before she was selected to star in the cross-country tour of "Roller Skating Vanities of 1942."

But she's a fine skater, has poise and glamor, looks and figure, and the customers like her.

Noting the quick success in recent years of the ice skating extravaganzas and remembering that a large chunk of Americans skate regularly at some 4,000 rinks, promoters decided to launch a show on roller skates.

It caught on and will be repeated next year. The show has dancers, spinners, jumpers, comics, ballerinas and even jugglers on wheels.

Gloria is five feet three, weighs 112 and has blue eyes. She was reared in Hollywood, naturally with an eye to the movies. And she did act in several kid roles and later as a dancer in shorts. Her dancing lessons were good background when she became interested in roller skating and with comparatively little experience reached stardom. It's a theatrical show but the thousands of youngsters, and grownups, who skate, still regard it as sport.

Ed Smith Hurls In Hard Luck

Pitches Two-Hitter and Loses, 2 to 0.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

SPECIAL "days" for ball players have been frowned upon in the major leagues this year because of the war, but in the spirit of fair play the American league should quickly set aside an "Ed Smith day" and instead of presenting him a rawhide suitcase give him a non-disappearing victory.

The stout, blond southpaw, one of the league's leading pitchers last year, has lost ten games this season without winning one and last night at Philadelphia he bumped into the most baffling setback of all.

He held the Athletics to two hits and yet was beaten as the Chicago White Sox slumped into last place in the standings. One run trickled across on a double play. The other came on a bad throw.

The New York Yankees contributed another change to the American league standings by beating Detroit 4-1 and knocking the Tigers out of second place. Rookie Hank Borowy pitched four-hit ball to achieve his fourth consecutive victory and Joe Gordon extended his hitting streak to 26 games while Buddy Hassett's string was halted at 20 games by Paul (Dizzy) Trout.

The Boston Red Sox took advantage of the opportunity to move ahead of Detroit with a 7-4 triumph over the rugged St. Louis Browns.

Five Washington errors, two of them by a rookie second baseman named Ellis Clary brought up last week from Chattanooga, helped the Cleveland Indians gain a 7-6 decision against the Senators in a 10-inning night game at the capital.

The Brooklyn Dodgers' night game at St. Louis was postponed until tomorrow night, limiting National league activity to two games.

At Cincinnati each team was held to five hits but the New York Giants curbed the Reds 3-1, and at Pittsburgh the Pirates supplanted Boston in fifth place by beating the Braves 10-2.

GATE FOR BIG RACE GOES TO WAR RELIEF

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The entire proceeds of Brooklyn Handicap day at Aqueduct June 27, except the purses and added money for stakes, will be contributed for war relief, Theodore J. Knapp, president of the Queens County Jockey club, has announced.

With the possibility of Whirlaway and Market Wise hooking up in another meeting, it is expected that over $100,000 will be raised. The distribution will be 40 per cent each to the Army and Navy and 10 per cent to the U. S. O.

Wins Own Game for Indians

Lovill "Chubby" Dean, fourth pitcher called on by the Indians last night at Washington, stopped the Nats, then won his own game in the tenth when he led off with an infield single, advanced on an error, took third on a wild pitch, and tallied the deciding run of a 7-6 victory on Ken Keltner's fly.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—If the All Service vs. All Stars ball game at Cleveland next month doesn't shatter the Municipal stadium record of 80,000 attendance, Lieut. Mickey Cochrane, U. S. N., will be sadly disappointed. . . . And so will a lot of others. . . . Mickey reported the other day that the soldiers and sailors and marines weren't expecting to lose to the big leaguers and he hinted the search for good players might even go so far as to bring Mickey Harris, the former Red Sox flinger, back from the Canal Zone.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Ken Murphy, Richmond (Ind.) Palladium-Item: "The only real chance the Cincinnati Reds have of passing the Brooklyn Dodgers would be in a taxi en route to the ball park some afternoon."

ONE MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are planning some big doings to lure the fans to their army-navy relief games. . . . And after making the grand tour to drum up trade, Prexy Ford Frick believes the National league's total will go above the $175,000 he originally estimated. . . . Max Baer's next job will be a navy picture; and Brother Buddy has been looking over the shipyards with an entirely different idea.

Ideals Take Tilt In 11th

Tires Edge Barnes, Westies, OPS Win.

Ideal Electric went 11 innings last evening to edge Local 1405 in a city softball league game 8 to 7. Kenny Windsor held the Ideals to nine hits in the extra-inning battle, while the union club was gathering 10 off Parr.

Mansfield Tire barely edged Barnes Manufacturing 7-6 when a five-run Barnes rally in the eigth fell one marker short. Daugherty hit a home run for Barnes, and Bob Boyd tripled for the Tires.

Aid Geiger held Local 758 to seven hits, and Westinghouse coasted to another easy victory, 12-2. Phillips and Hummel hit home runs.

Ohio Public Service staged a seven-run rally in the eighth to defeat Teaco 10-7.

TRACK STARS SEEK SCHOOL WITH TEAM

SHAWNEE, Okla. —(AP)— Because current plans at Oklahoma Baptist university call for abolition of varsity track next season some of the outstanding Bison stars are considering transferring to other schools, with most of them leaning toward the University of Oklahoma.

Lex Shelby, who as a freshman won the collegiate conference 100-yard dash crown this spring, was considered one of the finest prospects to enroll here.

DODDS ENTERED

NEW YORK —(AP)— Gil Dodds, fast traveling theologian of the Boston A. A., today entered the National A.A.U. 1,500-meter race at Randall's Island June 20. Among his opponents will be Les-lie MacMitchell of New York university, Don Burnham, Dartmouth sophomore, and Leroy Weed, University of Southern California.

Great Lakes Beats Phils

Johnny Rigney Hurls 7-Hitter For Tars.

GREAT LAKES, Ill. — (INS) — "Bring on the rest of your big league teams," exulted Lt. Mickey Cochrane today following the 2-1 victory of his Great Lakes Naval Training Station outfit over the Philadelphia Phils.

The game, played yesterday on the Great Lakes field, was the first encounter of the sailors against a major league team, although Cochrane's players previously had rung up 19 straight victories against other competition.

Johnny Rigney, former star White Sox pitcher and a recent recruit at Great Lakes, made his first appearance with the team and let the Phils down with seven hits. Before the season is over Great Lakes will have met a majority of the teams in both the National and American leagues.

BOBO SCORES KAYO

TOLEDO —(AP)— Harry Bobo, 205, Pittsburgh, knocked out Bob Smith, 190, Baltimore, in the second round of their scheduled 10-rounder last night. He floored Smith four times in the initial frame and twice in the second before the Easterner was counted out. Shelton Bell, Youngstown, knocked out Charlie Roth, Detroit, in the second stanza of the semi-final bout.

Indians Do Best At Night

Slip Up on Senators For 7 to 6 Victory.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Like the Indians for whom they were nicknamed, the Cleveland Redskins put on some of their greatest thrillers at night.

The Tribesmen slipped up from behind the Washington Senators to snatch last night's hairraiser, 7 to 6, in 10 innings. They have called on Jim Bagby to take his eighth scalp in tonight's melee.

Last night's one-run margin continued an owl-hour tradition. The Indians have played two other night games this season, losing a one-hitter to St. Louis, 2 to 1, and taking one from the Chicago White Sox by the same score.

Lovill (Chubby) Dean, fourth tribal hurler to work in yesterday's game, used his war club to bring the Redskins victory after his lefty slants put the Indian sign on Washington fielders as well as hitters.

Dean opened the 10th inning by beating out a bounder to Ellis Clary at second. Roy Weatherly grounded to Jim Pofahl at shortstop, but Clary dropped the throw—for one of the five Senator errors of the evening, and both Redskin runners were safe.

* * *

Bill Zuber then released a wild pitch, and both Indians advanced. Clary threw out Oris Hockett, but Dean crossed the plate with the winning margin when Keltner flied out.

Extra Holes Aid Printers

Two League Matches Go To Twelfth Green.

Richland Printing took the lead in the News-Journal "A" golf league at Possum Run last evening with a one-point margin over Long Bar by turning in a 4-1 victory over Andregg Billiards.

The Printers won their points the hard way, Harry Schlegel going three extra holes to defeat Harry Fay, and Maurice Byrnes travelling the same distance to edge Alex Davis.

Long Bar stayed in the runner-up spot with a 2-1 win over Big Three Beers, Quaker Market blanked Club Billiards 2-0, and Weaver Home Supply won from Barnes & Schmid Tires 3-2.

Two of the Weaver swingers went to the 11th green for their wins, Phil Schwaner edging Ken Mapes, and Clarence Walters taking Frank Lay.

Joe Mayer and Al Kushin tied for medal honors with cards of one-under-par 35 while Al Hager and Hugh Ferguson turned in even par.

Picture Continues.

"Tortilla Flat," continues at the Ohio through Friday with Spencer Tracy, Frank Morgan and Hedy Lamarr turning in the top performances. Adapted from John Steinbeck's book by the same name, the picture deals with a band of lazy Californians known as paisanos and the way they live from day to day. Miss Lamarr and John Garfield furnish the romantic note while Tracy plays the wits of the flock. Morgan appears as an old woodcutter who lives with five dogs and gives his all for a golden candlestick for St. Francis.

ROD AND REEL COURSE STARTS AT MINNESOTA

Fishermen Attend Classes and Learn Habits of Fish, Condition of Lakes.

(By United Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Fishermen are going to school at the University of Minnesota.

A new course, conducted by zoology professor Samuel Eddy, is designed to cover the habits of common Minnesota fish, conditions of Minnesota lakes, producing fish crops, balances in fish populations, and different kinds of fishing suited to Minnesota waters.

"The purpose of the course is to explode a few fish fallacies and add to the general information of those attending the lecture series," Eddy said.

The course includes 10 weekly lectures given in the university's night school. Fishing season opens at the end of the course.

"There are 1,200,000 potential fishermen in Minnesota," Professor Eddy said, "and they represent half the total population of the state. There is more interest in fishing here than in any other inland state because Minnesota has more waters, more fish, and better-biting fish."

That Minnesota fish bite better than other fish has been proven by statistics, Eddy said. The number of fish per man hours of fishing in Minnesota lakes has been put at 1½ to 2, while other inland states with less gullible fish average about ½ to 1 fish per hour.

"And that's not counting perch," he added.

Minnesota now boasts 5,000 square miles of water, Eddy said. One of the points he will stress in his lecture series is where not to fish, and where not to plant fish.

"Part of the trouble with this state is that anyone can apply for fish to plant in a lake and get a license with relatively little trouble," he said. "Balancing fish populations according to sizes and kinds will prevent lakes from being fished-out before their time."

Eddy advised fishermen to keep the little ones.

"Keep all the little fish," he said. "Chances are they won't grow up anyway. Most lakes have too many little fish that only clutter up the water and prevent development of the big fellows."

Madagascar is nearly as large as the state of Texas.

Silver Plated Food Cans May Soon Be In Style

BUTTE, Mont. — (INS) — It stretches the imagination — but the use of silver-plated cans by the food packing industry may not be far off, in the opinion of one western mining leader.

The man to whom the substitution of silver for increasingly-scarce tin appears a possibility is R. D. Leisk, manager of the Sunshine Mine at Kellogg, Idaho.

"Before the war is over, silver may be regarded as of much more strategic importance than now," Leisk told more than 350 mining men from Montana and Idaho at a meeting in Butte.

"Industrial consumption of silver almost has doubled in recent months and is being used as a replacement for tin," he said.

Leisk suggested that the government subsidize exploration work in the search for strategic minerals to aid in the war effort.

The meeting at which Leisk spoke was one of a series called by the Interior Department and presided over by Oscar L. Chapman, assistant secretary.

The first important commercial seafarers were the Phoenicians.

Ancient fighting galleys has as many as 16 tiers of oarsmen.

1—Death Notices

BOALS

Wade P., 78, passed away yesterday morning at his home in Mifflin Township after a year's illness. The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral Home where friends may call. Services will be conducted, 1:30, Thursday, with Rev. James L. Boyer in charge. Burial will be in Windsor cemetery. (Wappner Funeral Directors.) (L-k)

LETTEKER

Mrs. Alfred, 39, of 261 Hammond Avenue, died Tuesday morning at the Richland County Tuberculosis sanatorium after an illness of several weeks. The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral Home where friends may call. Services will be conducted at 3:30 a. m. Thursday with Rev. Grover E. Swoyer officiating. Burial will be made in the Shelby cemetery. (Wappner Funeral Directors.) (L-k)

RETTIG

Mrs. Dora, 73, widow of John Rettig, passed away Tuesday morning at her home, 159½ South Main Street after a lingering illness. The body was removed to the Wappner Funeral Home where friends may call. Services will be conducted 1:30 p. m. Friday with Rev. Grover E. Swoyer officiating. Burial will be made in Mansfield cemetery. (Wappner Funeral Directors.) (L-k)

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to expres our deep gratitude to our many friends, neighbors, relatives, the Ohio Brass company, Rev. Owens and the Finefrock Funeral Home for the assistance, expressions of sympathy, and beautiful floral offerings received during the loss of our loved one, Elisiatia M. Clark Cameron.

Mr. John Cameron,
Mrs. Mary A. Clark
and Brother, Eugene.
(L-k)

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

LEADERS TAKE LIGHT LOSSES ON MART TODAY

Price Swings Are Narrow as General Electric, U. S. Rubber Decline.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market price swings were narrow in today's dealings with most leaders on the loss side.

Recording small declines were General Electric, General Motors, U. S. Rubber and Sperry. American Telephone gave up a major fraction and Eastman Kodak dropped about a point. U. S. Steel and Western Union were unchanged.

Electric power use in the holiday week ended June 6, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, increased 1.5 per cent over the preceeding week, a less than seasonal expansion.

Reflecting this the Associated Press index of power production dipped to 158.2 per cent of the 1929-30 average compared with 159.2 the week before and 146.4 a year ago.

CHINA COUNTERS WITH ATTACKS

Guerrillas and Regular Troops Strike Near Nanchang to Deflect Japs.

Japanese-held supply and communications base.

Battling fiercely in Chuhsien's suburbs and behind its walled defenses, the Chinese garrison has killed or wounded more than 7,000 Japanese in fierce hand-to-hand fighting, a communique revealed. These figures brought to at least 18,000 the casualties inflicted on the attacking enemy in this area since last Wednesday.

It appeared that the Chinese were fighting a game but losing battle in their efforts to hold the middle stretch of the Kiangsi-Chekiang railway, the only east-west line in that part of China not under Japanese control.

At the western end of the line, the Japanese have recaptured Tungsiang in Kiangsi after receiving 3,000 reinforcements. A communique said at least 8,000 Japanese reinforcements had been thrown into the enemy's Kiangsi offensive driving south and southeast from Nanchang.

Japanese bombers and fighters were supporting the Kiangsi drive by attacking such Chinese-held towns at Shangjao, dispatches reported.

(Radio Berlin said Japanese occupation of Tsungjen, 55 miles south of Nanchang, cut off the retreat of 30,000 Chinese troops fighting in flooded marsh land.)

U. S., Allied Fliers Bag 13 Jap Planes

MELBOURNE —(U.P.)—American and Australian airmen today reported a bag of 13 Japanese planes destroyed or damaged in an air battle waged during the biggest Allied mass attack in several weeks on Japan's new Guinea invasion bases.

The Japanese gave the Allied pilots their "hottest reception" experienced thus far in the air war off Australia northern flank, the fliers reported.

Scores of Japanese fighter planes including swift navy "zeros" swarmed into the air in an effort to beat off the attack, carried out yesterday against the oft-bombed Japanese bases at Lae and Salamaua.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in a communique that eight of the zeros were shot down, two other probably were destroyed and three were damaged.

MacArthur also announced a big raid on the Japanese base at Ermera on Timor island in the northwestern invasion zone and said that an enemy submarine failed in a gunfire attack on an Allied vessel off the southeast Australian coast.

SHELBY SCOUTS SET FOR CAMP

SHELBY — Shelby Boy Scouts will join the other Johnny Appleseed area scouts at the annual camporall which starts Thursday at Crestline.

More than 50 boys from Shelby are planning to take part in the annual affair. A number of the scouts from here are planning on riding their bicycles to Crestline to conserve tires on their parents' automobiles.

The camporall will close on Saturday.

HONORS FLIERS

Brett Awards Purple Heart to Rabaul Attackers.

MELBOURNE — (U.P.) — Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, U. S. A., Allied air commander in the southwest Pacific, awarded purple hearts to five American air corps officers today for exploits over Rabaul, New Britain, New Guinea, and Darwin, Australia.

The recipients were Capt. Raymond T. Swanson of Chicago City, Minn.; First Lieuts. Maurice Horgan and Arnold Johnson, and Second Lieuts. Lawrence Werner and Edwin Cihak.

PROCEEDS WITH ROUTE 42 PAVING

State to Ask Bids This Month on Central Park, Park Ave. East Project.

undecided about where the money can be obtained.

If the city sets up the project soon and the state obtains bids as planned, the work probably could be completed this year, it was said.

Grimes said route 42 would be resurfaced around Central park and over the entire distance to the top of the Ashland hill. East First street, used as an auxiliary route for trucks, would be paved along with sections of Hedges street. Both have been badly damaged by heavy traffic.

Route 13 will be widened four feet, two feet on each side, and resurfaced with bituminous materials from a point about four miles south of Mansfield to Bellville and then over the southern half of the portion of highway from the Knox county line north to Bellville, Grimes explained.

"YOU'RE RIGHT, DOC, A COOL, ELECTRIC KITCHEN IS BEST FOR MOTHER AND VITAMIZED COOKING IS BEST FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY"

With our nation at war, America must conserve food . . . materials . . . resources . . . power. The following suggestions will help you save as well as to give you the maximum efficiency from the Electric Range or Roaster you enjoy so much.

1. Use as little water as possible when cooking —so that the water will boil quickly.
2. Place food in the water after it comes to a boil.
3. Continue the unit at high heat, until the water again boils, after food is added.
4. Reduce the heat, after the water again boils. Only a rolling boil is necessary.
5. Use covered pans — so that water reaches the boiling point faster — food cooks faster.
6. Use utensils that exactly fit or cover the electrical unit, preferably flat-bottomed utensils.
7. Cook food only until it is done. Avoid overcooking.
8. Turn off the heat five to ten minutes before the food will be cooked —cooking will continue on stored heat.
9. Be sure all units and switches are in proper working order—so that you get maximum efficiency from the electricity you use.
